Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan, "Toodles," and Mansfield's pet bull pup that recently died. Mansfield accuses "Toodles" of taking the dog with her when she left Fernecroft.

MANSFIELD TELLS OF HIS CASH GIFTS TO 'TOODLES'

Harry K. Mansfield, proprietor of Fernecroft Inn, closing his direct testimony today in Miss Elizabeth M. Ryan's $50,000 breach of promise suit against him, told of giving her cash gifts of hundreds of dollars. This came just before his cross-examination began at the hands of Daniel H. Coakley, who in his questioning mentioned the name of Police Superintendent Pierce of Boston several times.

Mansfield said he had given Miss Ryan in 1907, 100; the next year, $150; in 1910 an allowance of $40 a week for several months, which he increased to $75 a week; a Christmas gift of $500 in 1910; in 1912 a $50 allowance from April till December, and gifts in 1913 of money, and $500 when she left the inn.

Cross examined by Attorney Coakley, counsel for Miss Ryan, Mansfield said he knew Police Superintendent Pierce to be "a very estimable gentleman, one of the finest I ever met." Referring to an occasion when Miss Ryan rode in an auto in which, according to testimony, Was Superintendent Pierce, Mansfield was asked:

"You wouldn't want the jury to get the impression that he was with Miss Ryan in an automobile for any wrongdoing, would you?"

"It would not," answered the witness.

Testimony as to persons with whom Miss Ryan was friendly at the inn developed references to them as "No. 1," "No. 2" and so on up to "No. 53," counsel having agreed to withhold names in the evidence. "Joe" and "Mary" were mentioned several times, but their identity was not disclosed. Coakley called his numerical method of referring to witnesses a "dumb showdown—a speechless name."

Mansfield said his counsel, Michael Sullivan, had told him Miss Ryan's presence at the inn "hurt business."

Court convened at 10 a. m. The

REPORT ARRAIGNS FOREIGN SHIP MEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—"Ocean freight rates have been arbitrarily increased to an unparalleled height without regard to the interests of American trade.

"Some business plants have been shut down as a result of the exorbitant rates.

"If common carriers on land were to practice such discrimination against shippers and such arbitrary methods, they would be subject to criminal prosecution."

These counts are contained in a bitter indictment against the foreign steamship owners, filed with the Senate today by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary of Commerce Redfield.

The indictment makes a strong plea for the ship purchase bill, asserting the facts as they have found them an unanswerable argument in favor of an American government merchant marine.

The report today was supplemental to the statement made on December 26 last and was made in response to the resolution passed December 18, calling for information regarding the ocean freight rate situation.

The report reports these ocean freight charges arbitrarily imposed upon our farmers and business men "meant an increase for the month of December alone of $18,818,700 and if the exports continue at this rate it is estimated that the ship owners, principally foreign, will collect for the year 1915 increased freight charges above the normal rates of $216,224,400.

"The high rates are not only restricting the general volume of our export trade," says the report, "but are actually stopping exportations in some lines. Ship owners in some instances are taking only those goods or commodities which will pay the highest rates of freight and are easily unloaded, and are declining to accept shipments of other commodities (such, for instance, as lumber) because the character of the shipments and rates obtainable therefrom make it more to the interest of the steamship owner to accept one class of goods than another."

THAW SPRINGS SURPRISE; ASKS SANITY TEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Harry K. Thaw sprung his promised surprise on William Traverse Jerome and other attorneys representing New York State today when, upon arraignment before Justice Jerome and other attorneys representing New York State today when, upon arraignment before Justice Vernon M. Davis, in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court on the charge of conspiracy, his attorney John B. Stanchfield, demanded that the prisoner be sent to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to his sanity.

Jerome sprang to his feet and fought against the motion, and in the legal battle that followed Thaw's counsel freely intimated that Jerome had broken the word he gave to the United States Supreme Court.

The argument ended when Justice Davis sent Thaw back to the Tombs and announced that he would take the question under advisement for two or three days.

The surprise was planned at a conference in the Tombs this morning between Thaw and his counsel.

Thaw appeared in court in the custody of Sheriff Griffen Hogan and accompanied by his counsel, Stanchfield, Morgan J. O'Brien, Sr., Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., and Abel I. Smith.

"Harry K. Thaw to the bar," called the clerk.

The reading of the indictment followed. Jerome asked that a date for trial be fixed, and that Thaw be asked to plead.

JEROME PROTESTS.

Stanchfield then declared that the defence had no desire for delay, but read a section of the law which provided that if any person is arraigned for trial and there is a question of his sanity, the judge must commit him to Bellevue, where his sanity will be determined. He requested that Thaw be committed to that institution.

Jerome declared that there were only two ways to have Thaw declared sane; one to have the court declare him insane on a habeas proceedings. He asked Thaw be sent back to Matteawan pending his trial.

Obrien declared that the indictment against Thaw was merely a farce and stated that Jerome wished to railroad Thaw back to Matteawan.

He ceased Jerome of breaking his word to the United States Supreme Court when he said that the sole purpose of getting Thaw back to New York was to try him on the conspiracy charge. Thaw will never plead insanity in this case," said Stanchfield.

"If a jury acquits him of this conspiracy charge he will never go back to Matteawan. If he is found guilty he will take his punishment." Justice Davis said there was no fear that the Supreme Court's mandate would be violated, and sent Thaw back to the Tombs until Wednesday, on which day he will plead.

FAIR WAGES ADVOCATED BY JOHN D., JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in testifying today before the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, strongly defended his attitude in the Colorado mine strike, but at the same time he advanced the opinion that it is just as proper for labor to organize for its own protection as for capital to do so.

Mr. Rockefeller was expected to be one of the most important witnesses before the commission and the biggest crowd that has yet attended before the hearings was present when the son of the multi-millionaire "oil king" took the stand to make himself the target for questions on the relations between labor and capital.

In addition to being an active director of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, Mr. Rockefeller is also one of the chief directors of the Rockefeller Foundation, one of the philanthropic aggregations of capital which are being investigated by the commission.

Mr. Rockefeller, who was dressed in a black business suit and who seemed eager to testify, was first asked as to his occupation. He said:

"That is a hard question to answer. I spend part of my time directing the Rockefeller Foundation and part directing the industries established by my father. At other times I devote myself to matters of investment."

Then the witness began reading a

67 WARSHIPS IN NORTH SEA FIGHT

BERLIN, Jan. 25. (by wireless)—The German Admiralty admitted in an official statement issued here today that the armored cruiser Bluecher had been sunk in a naval battle between the British and German fleets in the North Sea, but also announced that a British cruiser was reported to have been sunk in the combat. The battle took place seventy nautical miles west of Helgoland.

According to the official statement the German fleet was outnumbered by the British squadron, but continued the battle for three hours. All the German ships except the Bluecher returned.

The statement issued by the Admiralty was as follows:

"On the occasion of an advance of the armored cruisers Seydlitz, Derfflinger, Moltke and Bluecher, accompanied by four small cruisers and two torpedo boat flotillas into the North Sea they came into a battle Sunday morning with English fighting forces numbering five battle cruisers, several small cruisers and twenty-six torpedo boat destroyers.

"After three hours fighting our opponent discontinued the battle seventy nautical miles west-northwest of Helgoland. According to present reports one battle cruiser has been sunk on the English side. Of our ships the armored cruiser Bluecher was sunk. All the other Germans are in the harbor."

The German official statement enables ones to get the approximate number of vessels engaged in the battle. A flotilla or division, according to German practice is twelve ships, and so the German fleet engaged totaled thirty-two vessels. The twenty-six British destroyers were accompanied by "several" cruisers, probably four, a similar number as accompanied the twenty-four German destroyers. This would make the British fleet engaged number thirty-five vessels, or a total of all engaged of sixty-seven vessels.

KING CONGRATULATES ADMIRAL BEATTY ON SINKING OF CRUISER BLUECHER IN NORTH SEA BATTLE

LONDON, Jan. 25.—King George today sent to Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty a personal message of congratulation on the victory won by his fleet over a German squadron of powerful cruisers in the North Sea on Sunday, in which the German cruiser Bluecher was sunk.

The entire English nation is celebrating the triumph won by the sailors of Britannia, in what the naval experts term the most important naval battle of the war.

This conflict, fought early Sunday morning north of the Frisian island, is believed to have prevented another bombardment of English coast towns. The British naval victory came at an opportune time to calm the fears aroused by the recent shelling of Hartlepool, Whitby and Scarborough and the Zeppelin raids over towns little more than 100 miles from London.

TWO CRUISERS DAMAGED.

The statement issued in Berlin today, saying that a British cruiser was reported to have been sunk in the battle, was declared by English naval officials to be an attempt to minimize the victory of Sir David Beatty. The reported loss of the English cruiser was

PROTESTS SALE OF HYDROPLANES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—A breach of neutrality in the sale of hydroaeroplanes to England by the Curtiss works at Hammondsport is charged in a note addressed to the State Department today by Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador.

The German embassy issued this statement:

"The German government through Count von Bernstorff has addressed a note to the State Department concerning hydroaeroplanes.

"The Curtiss works at Hammondsport, N. Y., have sold and sent to England the well-known hydroaeroplanes 'America' and five hydroaeroplanes of the same type.

"Forty-six hydroaeroplanes of a different type have been ordered by England and are under construction by the same firm. Also Russia has ordered a number of these vessels of Curtiss for use in her navy.

"There is no doubt and it does not need any explanation that from the standpoint of international law hydroaeroplanes have to be considered as war vessels and that therefore by article 8 of the agreement concluded at The Hague on October 18, 1907, neutral countries are prohibited to supply belligerent countries with such vessels. The selling of hydroaeroplanes by the Curtiss works therefore constitutes a breach of neutrality.

"Hydroaeroplanes are not especially mentioned in The Hague agreement for the simple reason that this kind of war vessel did not yet exist at that time."

COURT FIGHT OVER A MONGREL DOG

The legal battle for possession of a little brown mongrel dog, ownership of which is claimed by both Mrs. Agnes K. Philbrick and Freeman A. Grant, prominent Quincy people, was resumed today in the civil session of the Quincy Court, before Judge Avery.

Some time ago Mrs. Philbrick had Grant arrested on a charge of stealing the dog. After two lengthy court hearings the charge was dismissed by Judge Avery on the ground that the case was a civil one. Then Mrs. Philbrick got possession of the dog on a writ of replevin.

The hearing today was on this writ. The dog was in court, closely guarded by Mrs. Philbrick. Attorney John D. Mackay, representing Grant, moved that a dog was not goods and could not be legally replevined, but Judge Avery ruled the dog evidently had a value and, therefore, was "personal goods."

Give Theatrical Show for Kaiser

PARIS, Jan. 25.—A theatrical first night at Lille, attended by the Kaiser, is the latest German project in honor of the Emperor's birthday, says the Paris Midi on the authority of refugees from Lille.

COAST SWEPT BY STORM; 3 KILLED

A northeast gale swept the Atlantic coast today, accompanied by one of the worst rain and sleet storms of the Winter. In New York three persons were killed in accidents directly due to the storm.

Four inches of snow fell in Boston and suburbs. It was accompanied by a high wind. The rain turned it into slush.

The storm did no local damage to shipping. At Highland Light a forty-knot wind was reported.

Ships coming into port reported severe weather conditions off the New England coast, and it was feared that smaller craft might have suffered during the night.

Along the North and South Shores great waves lashed the beaches, threatening a repetition of the damage caused in the recent blizzard.

In Boston the streets were filled with slush which made walking hazardous. The condition of the streets was made worse by rain that followed the snow and sleet.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 25.—The criminal complaint brought against the Rev. Harold A. Folsom, unfrocked rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, because of his alleged relations with Miss Violet M. Pilgrim, a pretty nineteen-year-old member of the church choir, was dropped today as the result of a final settlement.

The amount paid by Folsom to Miss Pilgrim is not known, but that there was such a settlement was admitted.

The divorce case brought by Mrs. Folsom starts at the end of this week in Exeter.

New High Price in Chicago Wheat

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—May wheat opened at a new high price today, scoring 1.45⅛, and July corn hit its highest mark of 80⅝. Wheat was ⅝ above the best price hitherto made since the start of the European war. A moment after the opening May wheat sold at 1.45⅜, but was forced down to 1.44⅞ within five minutes. At 9.45 o'clock July corn touched 80⅝, a new high record.

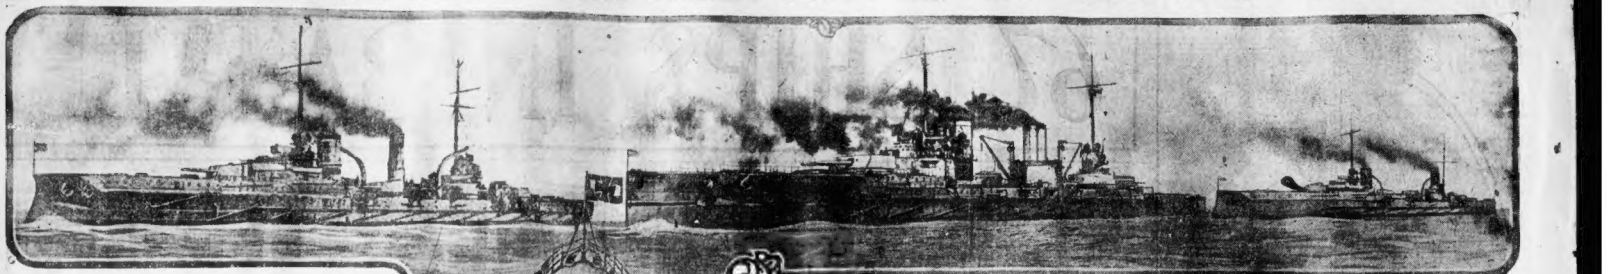
ADMIRAL BEATTY'S NORTH SEA FLEET FRUSTRATES RAID ON ENGLISH COAST



All England Celebrates Naval Victory in Which German Cruiser Was Sunk.

flatly denied and the Admiralty reaffirmed its declaration that the English casualties had been few.

While the Germans claim that all the vessels in their fleet except the Bluecher returned to their harbor, British Admiralty officials declare that two of the Kaiser's cruisers were badly damaged by the gunners of the Lion, Princess Royal, New Zealand, Indomitable and Tiger. This belief is confirmed as concerns at least one of the German cruisers by a dispatch from Amsterdam.

This message states that advices from Schiermonnikoog, a Dutch island in the North Sea, bring the news that a four-funnelled German cruiser, apparently badly damaged, was sighted there later yesterday afternoon sailing toward the east.

The cruiser was steaming at slow speed and seemed to have been crippled. This vessel is believed to have been one of those which participated in Sunday morning's battle.

All the newspapers unite today in a glowing tribute to Sir David Beatty and his sailors for defeating the German fleet and sinking the Bluecher. They declare the Germans' defeat was retribution upon "the baby-killers of Scarborough."

The Bluecher was the fifth armored cruiser that Germany has lost in the war. There were only nine vessels of her class in the German navy when the war began, and those that have been destroyed were the newest. Though built at a cost of $6,250,000, the Bluecher has always been regarded as a naval misfit. She was laid down according to plans that were behind the system on which British ships were being constructed at the same time. Though changes were later made she could not be brought up to date.

SACRIFICE THE BLUECHER.

Commenting on the naval victory won by the British the Daily Mail says that the moral superiority now lies with England.

"The children of Drake and Nelson still keep the North Sea," it says, "and have lost none of their ancestors' valor and seamanship."

With the other newspapers, the Mail at the same time flays the Germans for their bombardment of English coast towns, saying:

"The great and glorious achievement is more welcome because it was accomplished against the very force that has been misused by the German Admiralty for the bombardment of Scarborough and the murder of unoffending civilians."

The Daily News presents the unique theory that the Bluecher was sacrificed to save the Moltke, Seydlitz and Derfflinger, these making their escape while the British warships were destroying the Bluecher.

Baron Fisher, chief sea lord of the Admiralty, received hundreds of congratulatory dispatches today, this being his seventy-fourth birthday. Most of the messages combined birthday felicitations with congratulations on the North Sea victory.

CHECK GERMANS AT ST. MIHIEL

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A notable achievement announced in the official war statement issued at Paris today is the destruction of the German bridges at St. Mihiel. This accomplishment by the French troops is one of the most important of the recent fighting on the Meuse, where the Germans have for several months been attempting to cross that stream in force and shatter the French line of defence between Verlun and Toul.

Other minor successes for the French troops announced this afternoon include a victory in the fight for the trenches near Berry-au-Bac, destruction of German earthworks in Champagne, and slight progress for the Allies to the east of St. Georges in Flanders. The text of the Paris communique follows:

"In Belgium we advanced slightly to the East of St. Georges yesterday. On the rest of the front there was an artillery duel.

"From the Lys to the Oise there was an intermittent cannonade.

"On the Aisne front there is nothing to report except at Berry-au-Bac, where a counter-attack by the enemy was repulsed yesterday morning, the trenches in dispute there remaining in our possession.

"In Champagne we demolished numerous earthworks and German shelters.

"In the Argonne, in the forest of Laforurie, a very sharp rifle fire was stopped by the effective fire of our batteries.

"On the Meuse, the destruction of the bridges at St. Mihiel by our artillery has been achieved.

"In Lorraine, at Ember-Menil, we surprised a Bavarian detachment and took some prisoners."

GERMANS RETREAT IN POLAND.

Berlin today admits that the Russians have regained ground in Poland that had been lost in the last two weeks. It is admitted that the German troops who captured Opocano and Kielce have evacuated both these towns and have fallen back toward the Pilica River.

"The Germans still hold their positions on the right bank of the Pilica, but they are being fiercely attacked by the Russians between Opocano and Tomaszow.

Sunday morning the Russians, according to unofficial dispatches from Breslau, captured the village of Winiatynow, but this was retaken, six hours later by the Germans. Both sides lost heavily in the fighting.

An official statement issued by the German War Office this afternoon admits that French troops have captured a trench from the Germans southwest of Berry-au-Bac in France, but claims that all the French attacks at Hartmannsweiler Kopf were repulsed yesterday. The Berlin statement follows:

TRENCH LOST TO ALLIES.

"In the western theatre of war artillery battles occurred yesterday in the region of Nieuport and Ypres.

"Southwest of Berry-au-Bac we lost a trench which we captured a few days ago. North of Chalons there were only artillery duels yesterday, but two infantry engagements occurred north of Chalons today and are continuing.

"In the Argonne forest, north of Verdun and north of Toul, there is great artillery activity.

"All French attacks at Hartmannsweiler Kopf have been repulsed."

French and British airmen have reported important German concentrations in West Flanders and along the German centre during the past three days.

A Geneva dispatch says that two of Germany's biggest and newest Zeppelins sailed secretly from Friedrichshafen last night for a German base in Belgium. It is predicted that they will make a spectacular raid on Wednesday, which is the Kaiser's birthday. The new dirigibles are ninety-five feet longer than the old airships, and each is equipped with a platform on which hydro-aeroplane scouts can alight or from which they can fly.

Each Zeppelin is equipped with an hydro-aeroplane for reconnaissance duty and each carries sixty bombs. The airships carry enough fuel to enable them to travel 280 miles without a stop.

DESTROY GERMAN TANKS.

Travelers arriving at the Holland frontier today reported that bombs from the allies' aeroplanes destroyed the German petrol tanks at Bruges on Friday and all the stores of fuel that the invaders had accumulated there.

M. Millerand, French Minister of War, has returned to France from London, where he held important conferences with various members of the British government.

M. Millerand's mission is supposed to have dealt with the disposition of fresh English troops which are ready for the firing line now.

BRITISH GUNS SUPERIOR.

Damage to German redoubts near Givenchy (between two and three miles west of LaBassee in France) by British artillery is reported in an eye witness narrative, written by Colonel Swinton, of the Staff of Field Marshal Sir John French and issued by the government press bureau today. The narrative, which is dated January 19, states that the British artillery is generally superior to that of the Germans in accuracy and efficiency.

The account says:

"On January 15 on our right, a battery of heavy artillery and a battery of field artillery working in cooperation, first shelled some dugouts of the enemy. The occupants bolted into some houses, but our heavy guns quickly got the range of this new refuge also. Then the Germans fled into a patch of woodland against which our field artillery opened with shrapnel. Our howitzers shelled a convoy and destroyed some wagons. Our heavy artillery obtained three direct hits upon an observation station at Violaines.

"On the 16th all our action was again confined to artillery. The enemy's fire was less vicorous than on the preceding day, our guns maintained marked superiority. On our left our artillerymen had good practice in firing against trenches and houses opposite our left-centre. They also found a good target in the shape of a German battalion marching through a small wood. The continuous artillery combat almost takes the form of a game. In some parts of the field an soon as the German batteries begin shelling, our guns are directed against certain places on the enemy's lines, the bombardment of which we know will soon reduce them to silence. Having obtained the range and position of most of the hostile batteries, we can generally reduce them to silence or render their fire harmless in short order."

BATTLING FOR TARNOW.

A fierce battle for the Galician city of Harnow is raging between the Austrian and Russian armies, according to an official statement issued at Vienna. The Austrians gained some success in the Tarnow region on Sunday, according to the announcement, and are continuing their attacks upon the Russians, who now hold the town.

The situation in the Carpathians is unchanged, Vienna states, though the Russians have been driven out of several trenches south of the passes.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF SEA VICTORY

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The text of the British official press bureau's account of Vice-Admiral David Beatty's latest triumph in the North Sea follows:

"Early this (Sunday) morning a British patrolling squadron of battle cruisers and light cruisers, under Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty, with destroyer flotilla under Commodore Tyrwhitt, sighted four German battle cruisers and several light cruisers and a number of destroyers steering westward, and apparently making for the English coast.

"The enemy at once made for home at high speed. They were at once pursued and at about 9:30 a. m. action was joined between the battle cruisers Lion, Tiger, Princess Royal, New Zealand and Indomitable on the one hand and the Derflinger, Seydlitz, Moltkte and Bluecher on the other. A well contested running fight ensued. Shortly after 1 o'clock the Bluecher, which had perviously fallen out of line, capsized and sank.

"Admiral Beatty reports that two other battle cruisers were seriously damaged. They were, however, able to continue their flight and reached an area where dangers from German submarines and mines prevented further pursuit.

"No British ships have been lost and our casualties in personnel, as at present reported, are slight, the Lion which led the line, having only eleven wounded and no killed.

"One hundred and twenty-three survivors have been rescued from the Bluecher's crew of 835 and it is possible that others have been saved by some of our destroyers. No reports of any destroyer or light cruiser fighting has yet been received at the admiralty, though some has apparently taken place.

"Their lordships have expressed their satisfaction to Vice-Admiral Sir David Beatty."

LAY U. S. TRADE PLOT TO BRITAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Under the head, "Charges Britain Seizes Copper to Aid Its Own Agents," the World today publishes a dispatch from its Washington correspondent, in which it is asserted that "Great Britain is throttling this country's hundred-million-dollar export trade by using contraband regulations as a pretext."

Five great concerns, which control the great bulk of this trade, are making daily protests to the State Department against what is termed gross discrimination in favor of England, the writer says, and claims to have found proof in the department files and elsewhere for a number of serious charges, among which are the following:

1—Up to January 1 thirty-one cargoes of copper had been seized, aggregating 19,350 tons, and valued at more than $5,000,000. Nearly half of this is piled up at Gibraltar, despite all efforts to get some action.

2—Secretary Bryan has not secured the release of a single shipment.

3—The British Admiralty will not, under any pretext, permit a pound of our copper to reach a neutral country unless shipped through an English firm.

4—As a result a small group of English merchants, among them at least one member of Parliament, Charles S. Henry, have seized and now dominate all America's foreign markets.

5—That shipments made through this "ring" are permitted to go through, while others exactly similar in every detail, except in the commission house through which the sale is made, are held up.

6—That Britain is herself selling enormous quantities of at least one contraband to neutral countries while preventing American shipments.

7—That more severe measures were inaugurated immediately after the first great American concerns had refused to bind themselves to sell only through an English commission house closely identified with the British government.

SUFFRAGISTS AND ANTIS HEARD AT STATE HOUSE

The annual battle for woman suffrage was fought at the State House today. Suffrage champions and antis turned out in force. The antis were red roses. While the fray was thickest enthusiasts of both sides sewed and knitted for the Belgian sufferers. Mrs. William Churchill of Brookline, an anti-leader, sewed up to the instant she was called to lift her voice in opposition, and dozens around her were just as busy.

It was a spirited session. The biggest hearing room in the building was too small for the crowd that packed it to overflowing. It was a hearing before the committee on constitutional amendments on the amendment to strike out the word "male" from the Constitution. It passed the Legislature last year. It will have to be passed by the present Legislature also to be submitted to the voters to pass upon.

Mrs. Teresa A. Crowley led the suffragist forces. Louis D. Brandie was the principal speaker. Other speakers for the cause were Thomas F. Riley, formerly chairman of the Democratic State Committee; Henry Sterling, representing the Massachusetts Branch of the American Federation of Labor; Guy A. Ham, members of the Governor's Council who talked as a Republican, Fred H. Chase, representing the Socialists, and Frederick T. Fuller, representing the Progressives.

Robert Turner led the antis, who sat with their rose in a corner on the left. He and Mrs. Henry Preston White, Miss Evelyn Sears, Mrs. John F. Hill and Mrs. William Churchill spoke in opposition. Among the prominent suffragists present were Susan W. FitzGerald, Mrs. M. Wood Park and Mrs. Henry Peabody Magoun.

Mr. Brandeis said, in part:

"This question appeals to me as one of duty, rather than a question of right. It is the duty of the State to extend equal suffrage. Problems are confronting the government which the government as a government has not solved. The policy of democracy demands social justice so that all classes of people shall have the right to help solve the many problems that confront our government.

"I am more and more impressed with the qualifications of women to vote. We men have not succeeded any too well and we need the aid of the women."

Henry Sterling, in behalf of organized labor, said:

"Organized labor in Massachusetts represents 100,000 men, 20,000 members and 1,200 organizations."

"What authority have you to speak for organized labor?" called out one in the crowd.

"I have been here twelve years supporting this cause," replied Sterling. "I am here today with the authority vested in a vote of the State convention of the Massachusetts Branch of the American Federation of Labor."

Roosevelt Strike Grows

Ida Tarbell On the Scene

©BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

Miss Ida Tarbell, who visited scene of shooting of workers by private detectives.

Famous Writer Investigates the Shooting of Two Laborers by Private Detectives.

ROOSEVELT, N. J., Jan. 25.—Leaders of the striking workmen at the fertilizer plants are endeavoring to extend the strike to Elizabeth. They apparently expect that the killing of two laborers and the wounding of eighteen others by private detectives acting as deputy sheriffs at the Williams & Clark plant will excite workers in Elizabeth fertilizer factories to join their ranks.

A committee of strikers visited Elizabeth yesterday and told employes of the plant of the Bowker Fertilizer Company, a subsidiary of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, that, owing to the situation at the Williams & Clark and the Liebig & Co. works, the A. A. C. C. concerns here, the company is planning to fill part of its orders at the Bowker works and, therefore, "for the good of the cause it was up to them to go out."

Miss Ida Tarbell, the famous writer, visited the widow of one of the victims, and investigated for herself the strike situation.

Prosecutor of the Pleas Alfred A. Stein of Union County said at his home in Elizabeth that he was certain that the Elizabeth police and Sheriff George C. Otto of Union County would be able to handle most effectively any situation that might arise.

Sheriff Otto has said that to protect property and preserve the peace in case of a strike he wouldn't swear in a single employe of a detective agency, but would be able to find 200 reputable citizens of Union County to act as deputy sheriffs.

At several church services yesterday clergymen urged the strikers to continue living up to the letter of the law in their conduct of the strike.

Mayor Joseph A. Hermann said he proposed to let the results of the Grand Jury investigation into the killing of two strikers and the shooting of eighteen others speak for themselves. Sheriff Houghton said that had the Roosevelt police displayed a gathering of armed strikers there wouldn't have been a tragedy.

It is expected that nearly 100 residents of Roosevelt will go to New Brunswick tomorrow to testify against the twenty-eight deputies under arrest on murder charges when their cases are called before the Grand Jury.

A friend of Mayor Herrmann said it was ridiculous to accuse the Mayor of trying to play politics by siding with the strikers, for the simple reason that comparatively few of them are voters.

PARKER FUNERAL ON WEDNESDAY

The funeral of Charles Wallingford Parker, president of the Macullar Parker Company, will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday at his home, No. 228 Commonwealth avenue, where he died yesterday, at the age of eighty-three. The store is to be closed all day Wednesday.

Mr. Parker was born in Framingham, July 27, 1831. He attended the district schools and an academy, and became a clerk for the firm of A. Macullar & Co. In 1866, when the firm moved to No. 192 Washington street, Mr. Parker was made junior member and the firm name was changed to Macullar, Williams & Parker.

He married Miss Mary J. Schoff in Chelsea, November 20, 1854. Ten years later the couple moved to their present site, No. 400 Washington street. It was destroyed in the 1872 fire. In 1879 Mr. Williams retired and Mr. Macullar retired in 1895, Mr. Macullar died.

The incorporation of surviving members as the Macullar Parker Company followed, and Mr. Parker remained the active head until his death.

Drill Students, MacLaurin Says

President Richard C. Maclaurin, of Technology, favors military training for students in all American universities and colleges. He indorses the suggestion made by President Hibben, of Princeton, that military training in college will protect us from the domination of military caste and a military policy.

"If history makes anything clear, particularly recent history, it makes clear the fact that no nation is really safe from attack unless it is prudent enough to make adequate provision for its defense in case of aggression," declares Dr. Maclaurin.

"There should be no serious difficulties in this country in training the citizens to defend their country, and at the same time in avoiding the dangers of militarism, particularly the danger of dominance by a military caste.

"One means to this great end is to insist on a certain amount of military training in our colleges. We have had experience of this at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for half a century, and in my judgment the experience has proved that, apart from its military value, the training that the young men have received has been a good thing for them both physically and morally."

BOSTON WOMEN IN COWLES DIVORCE

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 25.—The names of many prominent Boston society women will figure at the trial of the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Florence Cowles, formerly Florence Jacquith of Brookline, against Dr. Edward P. Cowles, who has a sanitarium here. Dr. Cowles formerly practised in Boston.

The trial was to have started today, but was indefinitely postponed owing to the inability of Dr. Cowles to attend. He is confined to his home on Middle street as the result of falling from a train ten days ago. He announced today that he would enter a cross libel, but the grounds were not divulged.

It was stated that Mrs. Cowles' charges implicate prominent Boston women who were treated by Dr. Cowles. A patient at the sanitarium is named as corespondent by Mrs. Cowles. It was learned today also for the first time that Mrs. Cowles engaged detectives to spy on Dr. Cowles at the sanitarium and that she did considerable "sleuthing" herself.

Hide Boys' Deaths from Ill Mother

Mrs. Daniel P. Hanlon, of No. 157 Coleridge street, East Boston, an invalid, is today hoping for the return of her two sons, Daniel P. Jr., fifteen, and John, whose fourteenth birthday came today, whom she believes have run away. The truth, the shock which her husband fears to reveal to her, is that they were drowned in Three Point Channel, between Winthrop and Governor's Island, when their skiff was overturned in a squall.

The body of John was recovered on the flats between Governor's Island and Wood Island Park by William Lindsay of Saratoga street, East Boston, but the other body is still being sought.

Mr. Hanlon, accompanied by Gyp, the boys' fox terrier, is patrolling the beach, assisted by the harbor police boat Watchman.

Their sister, Catherine, eighteen, tried to dissuade the boys, telling them it was far too much on the water to risk the trip, but they laughed at her fears.

The minister was divorced by his wife in Chicago.

HOGAN BRIDES PROUD OF NAME

The Hogan brides are on the battle row against the Hogans engaged to be married.

It is known that within the last few greater Boston young women have cheerfully and happily changed their name to Hogan and next to another might Miss Marion A. Elliot, No. 31 Marcella street, Roxbury, will change her name to Hogan when she is united in marriage to William J. Hogan of No. 2 Valentine street, Roxbury.

Here is the list of young women who have proudly changed their names to Hogan:

Nora S. Ring of Cambridge, who married John Hogan of No. 425a Broadway, South Boston.

Cecilia E. Flemming of No. 2 Nonantum avenue, Allandale, who is marrying John J. Hogan of Norwood.

Annie McKeon, who married Patrick Hogan of No. 450 Green street, Chelsea Hogan.

Annie M. Bowen of No. 26 Erie street, Dorchester, who married Patrick J. Hogan of Cambridge.

Anna M. Beckman, who married William J. Hogan, a bookkeeper at the Crawford House.

BRIDES ADORE NAME.

The Hogan brides have been interviewed on the new famous Hogan case and they declare as for the Hogan name—they adore it. You know young brides express themselves in such words as adore, which older married folk might not use offhand as it were, though they would most approval just the same.

Miss Marion Elliot, who is next to change her name to Hogan, says:

"I love the name of Hogan."

Her stalwart young husband-to-be says:

"I am proud my name is Hogan and have no idea of changing it. I am proud I am Irish. The mistake the Hogans of the Back Bay made was in not returning to Nova Scotia and having their name changed where they were born. I hope the bill to be introduced in the Legislature by Representative Donovan will be enacted and the Hogans permitted to change their name so the Hogans will not be afflicted with them."

ANOTHER HOGAN VIEW.

"Ashamed of my name? You just bet I'm not," declared Mrs. Annie M. Hogan, bride of Patrick J. Hogan, of No. 450 Green street, Cambridgeport, when seen at her home.

"Be I from being ashamed of my name, I am very proud of it," continued Mrs. Hogan. "Although my husband receives the pay of a mechanic and we are obliged to live modestly, you could not buy my name for any sum of money. I have no use for a Hogan that wants to get rid of the name."

"I was born a Bowen in good old Roscommon County, Ireland, twenty-four years ago. Can anybody beat Mr. Hogan, who is a fine husband, I am proud of him and his name as well. Pat is also proud of his name and it would not be safe for anyone to allow him to try to have it changed because it is too Irish. He has never been annoyed because of his name and do not think he would be any better off if his name was Smith or Black."

In the meantime the Edward J. Hogans are determined to change their name to Homan for their business and social benefit. They are now at work up over down by the front of the Probate Court to permit them to make the change, but will appeal to the Superior Court to be relieved of the name which they do not like.

Also Representative John D. Donovan of Ward 9, Boston, plans to ask the legislature to permit the Edward J. Hogans to rid of them the name their name.

THE "HOGAN-ROMANS."

Lest it be forgotten a roster of the Hogans, as their names are now, and the names they wish to bear, follows:

Edward J. Hogan, clothing salesman, birthplace St. John's, N. F., has taken out first naturalization papers —wants to be Edward J. Homan.

Edward D. Hogan, workman—desires to be Osborne Mailes-Homan.

Herbert W. Hogan, bank clerk, petitions to become Warren Mailes Homan.

Mary L. Hogan—seeks to be known as Louise Mailes-Homan.

Gladys Hogan—asks to be changed to Gladys Mailes-Homan.

A well-known lawyer declared at the courthouse today that the Hogan family could have avoided all the publicity they have brought upon themselves by simply changing their names, asking the permission of no court, no Legislature, no person—simply change their names and let it go at that. Said this lawyer:

"Your name is your own property. Call yourself what you like. It's legal and it is perfectly all right."

Maybe this is a tip to the Hogans who would be Homan.

Boston Men Oppose Navy Expansion

ROCKEFELLER'S VIEWS ON LABOR

statement which had been prepared in advance, part of which follows:

The commission has asked my views as to what extent the stockholders and directors of a corporation are responsible for the labor conditions which exist in it and for the social conditions which are produced, how generally and in what manner such responsibilities are assumed by stockholders and directors, and the actual practice here, and upon what general basis, the labor policies of large corporations are determined.

The responsibility of stockholders is practically limited to the election of directors. They have no power to elect officers, to employ labor, to make contracts or to intervene directly in the management of the business.

A large stockholder, however, is able to exercise considerable moral influence over the directors and officers and is responsible for exercising that influence properly.

The directors are responsible for the general conduct of the business. they have the power to elect officers and to determine the policies of the business.

MUST BE ORGANIZED.

All large business has to be organized. The responsibility has to be divided and related to various officers and the officers have to be given powers commensurate with their responsibilities. Those responsibilities are in general divided in such a way that the directors attend principally to the financial affairs of the corporation, leaving the actual conduct of operations to the officers.

Labor conditions, so far as they are within the control of a corporation, are matters for which the officers of the corporation are primarily responsible and with which they, by reason of their experience and their first-hand acquaintance with the facts, are best qualified to deal.

Labor policies are initiated and determined by the officers, whose efficiency is largely measured by the harmony and good will which they are able to maintain between the company and its employes. It is not customary to submit labor policies to a board of directors for action.

Conference regarding them is often had with the directors or executive committee at the instance of the officers and suggestions are made to the latter by both these bodies.

Any one who has followed the controversy which has arisen out of the Colorado situation will have observed that no effort has been spared to make it appear that I have attempted to exercise a kind of absolutism over the coal industry in Colorado and particularly that I have sought to dictate a policy of non-recognition of unions.

ABHORRENT TO HIM.

An attitude toward industry and toward labor such as is there implied is so abhorrent to me personally and so contrary to the spirit of my whole purpose and training that I cannot allow these allegations to pass unnoticed without at least outlining my responsibilities as I have viewed them and my obligations as I have sought to discharge them.

While it has been said that I have exercised an absolute authority in dictating to the management of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, it has also been said that I have been too indifferent and that as a director I should have exercised more authority. Clearly, both cannot be true.

What are the facts?

First, with reference to my attitude toward labor unions, I believe it to be just as proper and advantageous for labor to associate itself into organized groups for the advancement of its legitimate interests, as for capital to combine for the same object.

WHEN HE FAVORS THEM.

Sometimes they provide benefit features, sometimes they seek to increase wages, but whatever their specific purpose, so long as it is to promote the well-being of the employes, having always due regard for the just interests of the employer and the public, leaving every worker free to associate himself with such groups or to work independently, as he may choose—I favor them most heartily.

Combinations of capital are sometimes conducted in an unworthy manner, similar to labor, without due regard of the interest of both of labor and the public. Such combinations cannot be too strongly condemned nor too vigorously dealt with.

Although combinations of this kind are the exception, such publicity is generally given to their unlawful acts that all combinations of capital, however rightly managed or broadly beneficent, are thereby brought under suspicion.

Likewise, it sometimes happens that combinations of labor are conducted without just regard for the rights of the employer or the public and methods and practices adopted which, because unworthy or unlawful, are deserving of public censure.

Such organizations of labor bring discredit and suspicion upon other organizations which are legitimate and useful, just as is the case with improper combinations of capital, and they should be similarly dealt with.

DISPEL DISTRUST.

I should be the last, however, to allow the occasional failure in the working of the principle of the organization of labor to prejudice me against the principle itself, for in that principle I strongly believe.

As respects the question of the recognition or non-recognition of labor unions in Colorado, my attitude has been in conformity with the views I have expressed relative to the responsibilities of stockholders, directors and managers.

The only coal property in Colorado in which we are in any way interested is the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company. In addition to this company, there are many other coal mining companies in that State, in none of which either we or the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company have any interest whatsoever, and a large number of these companies were involved in the strike. For me to have attempted to dictate a policy or control the situation would have meant an assumption of authority far beyond what the investment which I represent in the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company would have justified, and, if tolerated by the management of that company, would have been resented by the other companies involved in the dispute.

Since we first acquired an interest in the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company in 1902, the company has paid out in wages to its employes over $92,000,000. During the same period, we have received dividends amounting to $71,000 on our investment in the company's capital stock. Therefore, our stock interest in the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company has yielded a return of about two-thirds of one per cent. per annum on an actual cash investment of about $6,000,000.

It should be stated that we hold, in addition to the stocks above mentioned, a block of bonds, but that our entire investment in the stocks and bonds of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company has yielded during a period of twelve years not more than 2½ per cent. per annum.

EXTENDED BUSINESS.

Yet during that time, instead of exploiting the industry, as has been frequently stated, we have supported a policy of development by devoting surplus earnings to improvements, thereby increasing employment, and generally extending the business, rather than paying dividends.

As to the strike itself, its many distressing features have given me the deepest concern. I frankly confess that I felt there was something fundamentally wrong in a condition of affairs which rendered possible the loss of human lives, engendered hatred and bitterness and brought suffering and destitution upon hundreds of human beings.

Without seeking to apportion blame, I determined to do so far as lay within my power I would seek means of avoiding the possibility of similar conflicts arising elsewhere, or in the same industry, in the future.

DEVELOPS MANHOOD.

I believe that the ultimate object of all activities in a republic should be the development of the manhood of its citizens, that such manhood can be developed to the fullest degree only under conditions of freedom for the individual, and that industrial enterprises can and should be conducted in accordance with these principles.

I believe that a prime consideration in the carrying on of industry should be the well-being of the men and women engaged in it, and that the soundest industrial policy is that which has constantly in mind the welfare of the employes as well as the making of profits, and which, when the necessity arises, subordinates profits to welfare.—From the statement of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., before U. S. Commission on Industrial Relations.

WORKERS' WELL BEING FIRST THOUGHT, SAYS YOUNG ROCKEFELLER

I believe that a prime consideration in the carrying on of industry should be the well-being of the men and women engaged in it, and that the soundest industrial policy is that which has constantly in mind the welfare of the employes as well as the making of profits, and which, when the necessity arises, subordinates profits to welfare.

MANSFIELD AGAIN TELLS OF 'TOODLES'

court room was crowded. A line of hopeful ones extended from the court room entrance down the corridor to the elevator. Court officers were kept busy restraining their impatience.

Judge Fessenden, before court opened, conferred with Attorney Sullivan, who represents Mr. Mansfield. Attorneys Coakley and Daley, representing Miss Ryan, entered the court room late, with Miss Ryan. They came through the judge's lobby, to avoid the crowd.

Mansfield resumed his testimony at 10:05. Before testifying he mopped his forehead with a handkerchief.

PICTURE IN CORRIDOR.

Q.—I want to call your attention to a picture of your aunt. Where was that placed? A.—In the corridor.

Q.—Which end? A.—It was really in the middle of the apartment.

Q.—And there are five of the living rooms could you see this picture? A.—Not unless you stood in the doorway.

Q.—In reference to the police visit to the inn in 1910, did you know Miss Ryan? A.—She was away. I remember she came back quite late that night.

Q.—How long was she away? A.—All afternoon to the best of my knowledge. She came home at night.

Q.—In 1911 when Miss Ryan went to New York and that was just previous to the fire, did you have an apartment in Park Square, Boston, No. 4 Fenway street.

Q.—Did you have a trunk when she was there, and did she take it away? A.—She took one or two trunks.

Q.—Were you late in 1911 when you went to New York by Miss Ryan about leaving you. A.—There was none.

Q.—Was there any talk by Miss Ryan about you being married by a clergyman of any particular faith? A.—Never.

Q.—Did you tell her you were a Presbyterian? A.—I did not.

Q.—Are you a Unitarian? A.—I am not.

Q.—Did you ever tell Miss Ryan's mother that you would take Bess away and get married? A.—I never did.

Q.—You and Miss King, did you have any talk in reference to the age of Miss Ryan? A.—Yes.

TELLS TOODLES' AGE.

Q.—What was said? A.—I asked him which was the eldest, his wife or Miss Ryan. He said Miss Ryan was a year and a half older than Helen, his wife. Miss Ryan's sister and Helen was twenty-two when they were married. He said in talk in 1913 and he said they had been married nine years.

Mansfield testified that when he was visiting the Kings' home he had many conversations regarding the naming of any children that might come to the household. He testified that on that visit he went to Sarin Block, a Boston florist, with Miss Ryan, and while there a Bird of Paradise, or some such name, flew around. He said Miss Ryan said to him: "What happened while I was out with you and you were to pay all the future bills. The bird cost $50."

Q.—About these presents that you gave Miss Ryan, I didn't ask you how much money you had given her. Can you tell? A.—I never tried to arrive at a sum total of the approximate amounts, or how much I have given Miss Ryan; but on her first visit in 1907 I gave her $100. The second time, in May of 1908, I gave her $150. In 1910, $50 or $60 before the allowance of $50 and $100 until the first of December. Christmas of 1910 a present of $500. In 1912, the last of April, a $50 allowance, which continued until December of 1912. In 1913, a few presents of $50 each, and going away $500. That's all.

CHECKS IDENTIFIED.

A number of checks were then identified by Mansfield, drawn on the Atlantic National Bank, Trust Company. They were marked as exhibits. One dated August 27, 1910, payable to cash; signed Bessie Ryan, for $100.

Another September 12, 1910, to the order of Bessie Ryan, signed Bessie Ryan, amount not stated. September 4, 1912, $300. September 5, 1912, $200. September 9, 1913, to Harry & Tibbetts $60. September 10 1913 Tom Lance, $50.

At 10:30 Mansfield finished his direct examination, and his cross-examination was begun by Attorney Coakley.

"Mr. Mansfield," Attorney Coakley began, "I want to see if I can shorten the cross-examination—if I can find an issue on which you and Miss Ryan agree. Did you go to New York to talk with Miss Ryan and did she come back to Boston and live with you?

A.—I cannot answer that. I never knew she discontinued living with me.

Q.—After she lived with you in Boston, on some occasion, she went away and you went to New York, after which she returned to Boston. Is that correct? Did not this take place on at least three occasions? A.—I remember one. That was when I met her at the Hotel Knickerbocker and went to Mrs. Hempstone's apartment. Miss Ryan returned to Boston with me that day.

SAYS SHE CAME BACK.

Q.—That was the only time you went to New York and met her and talked with her and she came back to Boston? A.—Except when we went to Europe and returned.

Q.—Did you go over to New York on one occasion and urge her to come back when she didn't come? A.—I never returned urging Miss Ryan to come back.

Q.—And she didn't come? A.—Only once.

Q.—And you talked over the matter only once? Do you remember coming over? A.—I do.

Q.—Did you write to her about coming and she didn't come? A.—I do not remember ever writing to her.

Q.—Aren't you in doubt about writing to her? A.—Are we starting from 1907?

Q.—After she had been living with you. A.—I cannot remember.

Q.—You said that three times. I ask you whether you are in doubt about that. A.—I don't remember.

WANTS TO SAY "NO."

Q.—Now you've said that three times already? A.—I do not want to say 'No.' I cannot answer better than that.

Q.—I understand you to say that you never promised to marry Miss Ryan? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you say that the subject of marriage was never mentioned? A.—I do.

Q.—Do you say that the word "marriage" was never used? A.—I am sure.

Q.—And you say the word "marriage" was never used? A.—It was used with reference to someone else.

Q.—Do you recall it? A.—I do not.

Q.—Did I understand you to say some one else? A.—I said "with some one else."

Q.—Were the people she met at Fernecroft Inn or at other places where you took her when you introduced her? (Mr. Mansfield hesitated).

AGREE NOT TO GIVE NAMES.

Q.—Mr. Sullivan and I agreed not to give any names. Now, without using names, were these men to whom you introduced her—were they living with women other than their wives? A.—I do not know a single couple not living together to whom I introduced Miss Ryan.

Attorney Coakley stepped up close to Mr. Mansfield and referred to a man named "Joe." Joe was abroad, was he living with a woman.

Q.—Did you introduce Miss Ryan to a couple's marriage? A.—No.

Q.—That couple were not married when they traveled abroad, were they? A.—I cannot say.

Q.—You know "Mary," we won't mention her last name. Did you introduce Miss Ryan to Mary? A.—I did not. Miss Ryan made her own acquaintances.

Q.—You introduced Miss Ryan to hundreds of persons at Fernecroft Inn, didn't you? A.—I did not.

Q.—Can you name a single friend of yours who frequently visited Fernecroft during the time Miss Ryan was there to whom you did not introduce Miss Ryan? A.—Why, yes.

To Cure Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that the following simplification can usually be successfully tried at home: Secure from any medicine that in many instances has effected a complete cure in other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch is plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them, and you will be doing them the favor of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist ½ oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drums, the correct way, even if atrocious in the middle ear, and the results it gives are really quick and decisive.

Those who have catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this distressing disease.—Advertisement.

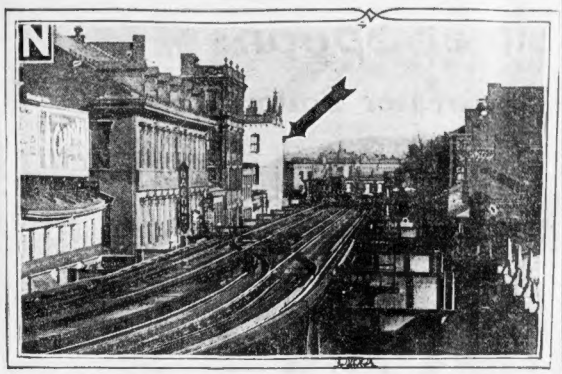
Save 50 on Icy Ladders in Roxbury Fir

Women Flee Hotel in Night Clothes



Hotel Comfort, indicated by arrow, at Williams and Washington streets, Roxbury, where fifty persons were driven from their beds by flames early today, and were rescued after perilous trips down icy ladders and slippery fire escapes, many fleeing into the sleet storm clad in night clothes.

Fifty persons, many of them women, fleeing death in the flames during a three-alarm fire in the Hotel Comfort, Washington and Williams streets Roxbury, early today, were assisted to safety by firemen and policemen down fire escapes and ladders.

As they climbed out of windows, the men and women tenants faced a new peril in a cold driving sleet, most of the sheeing in their thin night clothing. Practically all of them had thrilling escapes, as the ice and snow made the ladders exceedingly slippery, and the firemen and volunteer rescuers worked amid great difficulties.

Quick work by the fire fighters confined the flames to an elevator shaft until the tenants had left the building. Later the flames burned out the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. William Boynton on the third floor.

A few of the fleeing tenants, who made their escape from the lower floors by the way of the stairs, and from the upper floors by the fire escapes, had snatched up heavy overcoats or heavy wraps in their first dash from their warm beds to the storm outside.

All were taken care of in the two nearby hotels, the Potter House and the Holland House, as soon as they reached the sidewalk. Hot drinks were supplied to them, and they were cared for in warm rooms.

The heavy sleet storm had coated the fire escapes with ice. The fleeing tenants were assisted down these ice-covered gratings by the firemen and police.

The Comfort is a four-and-a-half-story marble-faced building, at the corner of Williams and Washington street, equipped with fire escapes on the Williams street side. There are about eighteen suites in the building, occupied by about fifty people.

The fire was discovered by Patrolmen Higgins of the Dudley street station and Ryan and Mulrey of the Roxbury Crossing station. They saw smoke pouring from the basement windows. Higgins ran to the next corner, Eustis street and sent in an alarm and then returned to join Ryan and Mulrey in their work of arousing the tenants.

The blaze had started somewhere in the basement, it is believed, and spread in one jump from the basement to the roof by the way of an elevator shaft. At every floor the smoke mushroomed out from the shaft against the ceilings, filling each floor toward the Williams street side with a dense smoke.

People on the second floor were able to escape by the stairs. Those on the upper floors were either unable to fight their way down the stairs, or else were afraid to trust themselves to the smoke-filled corridors and stair wells. From the third and fourth floor, people with rooms on the Williams street side, immediately took to the open fire escapes, sliding and slipping down the icy gratings in their bare feet.

Franklin DeRosia was asleep on the second floor with his wife and seven-months-old baby Francis. He immediately hustled them both to the fire escapes, clad only in heavy wraps that they snatched up on the way.

MRS. BEECKMAN HELPS JOBLESS

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 25.—Mrs. H. Livingston Beeckman, wife of Governor Beeckman, has arranged an auction sale of contributed articles to begin Wednesday, the proceeds to aid women out of work.

She may herself act as auctioneer.

While a committee appointed by Mayor Gainer was considering ways and means for helping unemployed men, it appeared that no mention was made of unemployed women, with the result that an invitation was sent out by Mrs. Beeckman to heads of charitable women's societies as well as leaders of social circles. The invitation brought 127 women to the home of the Governor at No. 13 Brown street.

DONATIONS PLEDGED.

"I would suggest an auction, not a rummage sale, but an auction of useful articles. Surely each one here could contribute one or two articles and not feel the loss. That would be a fortune," said Mrs. Beeckman in opening.

Promptly every one present promised to donate two articles.

A plan was offered to urge the manufacturing concerns as well as storekeepers to contribute something for needy women.

Representative women pledged their families to contribute until the offerings reached over 400 contributions.

"While we are doing splendidly," said Mrs. Beeckman, "I would suggest that every person who can be reached be asked to assist."

It was suggested that money from the sale be used to buy shirting and clothing that women could make. Employment could be had for a great many women, it was argued, and the effort would be far reaching inasmuch as it would be indirectly of benefit to hundreds of worthy persons known to be in want.

It was decided to work in conjunction with the "Emergency Job Bureau" at No. 527 Westminster street, where 900 women and 4,000 men have registered and are waiting for an opportunity to work.

4,000 LETTERS SENT.

The women, however, have headquarters of their own, located at No. 810 Industrial Trust Building, where Mrs. Beeckman is a daily visitor and keeps in touch with the movement. While the committee appointed by Mayor Gainer is working along its own lines to help the men Mrs. Beeckman's committee has had 4,000 letters mailed to storekeepers, professional men, politicians, and, in fact, to every person believed to be in a position to assist, asking aid.

While it has been suggested that one day Mayor Gainer would act as auctioneer and the next day that Governor Beeckman would "oblige," it is whispered among the women that Mrs. Beeckman is more than likely to be importuned by her sex to take the auctioneer's stand on the opening day.

The spacious store at No. 88 Weybosset street will be set off with six booths displaying many articles. The contributions to date consist of every known article from a razor to a lot of land. It is believed that it will be days before all the articles are sold, as the 4,000 letters, it is expected, will bring in a great number.

To the AMERICAN reporter Mrs. Beeckman said: "The co-operation of the ladies of Providence and elsewhere is perfectly splendid. Everyone is working day and night and I believe the auction will be a great success. Surely much good will result from such a magnificent effort on the part of so many willing women, assisted by so many who will not miss their offerings. The benefit from such an undertaking is splendid to consider."

MELROSE HIGH AND RINDGE TECH IN CLOSE BATTLE FOR SCHOOL HOCKEY TITLE

WELSH-WHITE GO IS CALLED OFF

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—James Johnson, matchmaker of the Garden Athletic Club, announced today that the fight scheduled for tomorrow night between Freddie Welsh, world's champion, lightweight, and Charlie White of Chicago had been called off because White had been stricken with a severe attack of grippe.

There is some mystery connected with the sudden cancelling of the bout at this late hour. Rumors that White was sick in bed with a high fever were circulated last night, but these were denied today at the Hotel Aphrorp, where the Chicago fighter has been stopping.

It was stated there at 8 o'clock that White had gone out for a walk and would be ready to fight tomorrow night. At 10:30 o'clock, however, Matchmaker Johnson announced that the fight had been called off.

Brookline Arranges Baseball Schedule

The schedule of the Brookline High School baseball team was announced today by Student Manager Craig. A long list of contests has been arranged for Captain Kendrick's men. The baseball outlook at Brookline is very bright and the school expects to make things interesting for the best schoolboy teams in Greater Boston. The schedule is as follows:

April 18, Harvard freshmen at Cambridge; April 17, Lawrence Academy at Groton; April 21, Wellesley High at Brookline; April 24, Weymouth High at Weymouth; April 28, Dorchester High at Dorchester; May 1, open; May 5, Wellesley High at Wellesley; May 8, Pomfret High at Pomfret, Ct.; May 09, Boston Latin at Brookline; May 15, Waltham High at Waltham; May 19, Everett High, time to be announced; May 24, Newton High at Brookline; May 26, Rindge Technical at Brookline; May 30, open; Boston High at Newton; June 4, Cambridge Latin at Cambridge; June 11, Cambridge Latin at Brookline.

Pirates' Camp Has Big League Diamond

HOT SPRINGS, Jan. 25.—The business men of Hot Springs, Ark., have notified Barney Dreyfuss that Witherington Park, where the Pirates will train, has been fitted to the highest degree of major league excellence. Dreyfuss is partial to Hot Springs because there he is safe from interference on the part of Federal League clubs. A court injunction prevents agents of the independents operating in Hot Springs. This injunction was granted last year against Howard Cammitz, the former Pirate pitcher, when he attempted to sign away some of Fred Clarke's players.

Brooklyn Shift for Falkenberg Denied

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 25.—"There is absolutely no truth in the report that Fred Falkenberg will be transferred to the Brooklyn team of the Federal League," said W. H. Watkins, business manager of the Indianapolis Federal League club, today. Falkenberg has two more years to play under his contract with Indianapolis. Next October, who is at Champaign, Ill., who formed one of the reported deal, said there does not "think there is anything in it."

BOXING NOTES

THE boxing game is dead around the New England circuit. Only a few clubs are conducting shows, and they are experiencing difficulty in making both ends meet. The real lovers of New England are just as anxious to witness first-class shows today as they ever were. The present condition of the boxing game hereabouts has been caused by a number of greedy and poorly posted boxing managers and ring men, who have been aided by promoters who are entirely lacking in the qualifications which go to make for success in sports and in the other walks of life.

Football Stuff Barred in Winter

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Life for Secretary John B. Foster of the Giants is just one bunch of trouble after another. Football enthusiasts, with a desire to do their shopping early, have swamped this executive with inquiries and reservation requests for the annual Army-Navy gridiron struggle, which will be witnessed on the Polo Grounds next Fall.

"I wish you would tell the public for me," grumbled John B. yesterday. "That when the proper time comes the New York club will announce its plans for the classic. Football in January is a new wrinkle to me."

WANT BASEBALL DECISION EARLY

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Hope was expressed today by representatives of organized baseball and the Federal League that Judge Landis would make a decision soon in the latter's prayer for an injunction which he took under advisement Saturday after lawyers for the contestants had spent four days in arguing the case.

Early settlement of the suit as well as the several pending against ball players, is generally wished for by managers, that they may know in advance of their training seasons what the make-up of their squads will be.

A majority of the visiting magnates and attorneys have left town. Lawyers for the defendants will spend the next three weeks in preparing answers to the Federals' original bill of complaint.

Despite the court's action on the prayer for a temporary injunction, the charges of monopoly and restraint of trade probably will be tried within a month.

Columbia and Yale Swimmers to Meet

Harry A. Fisher, graduate manager of athletics at Columbia, denies that there is any breach between Yale and Columbia relative to a date for their dual meet in the Intercollegiate Swimming League. It was said that Columbia had arranged to swim the Eli amphibians this week, forgetting that examinations would interfere. According to the story, Columbia was supposed to have asked Yale to transfer the date to next month, but the New Haven collegians refused to do it.

Fisher says there was no dispute and added that Columbia would meet Yale in New York on February 6.

Great Footwork.

After Jack Johnson gets through sidestepping the authorities of the 57 different governments in Mexico, his footwork on his coming bout with Willard should be something marvelous.

SHEPPARD RUNS HERE SATURDAY

Mel Sheppard, the grand old man of the middle distance running game, has entered the Mayor Curley 1,000-yard trophy race at the Irish American A. A. games to be held at Mechanics Buildings next Saturday evening. Sheppard has wired his entry to the local club, stating that he will positively be on hand for the big race.

The securing of this middle-distance crack is only the first move on the part of the local committee to get the best available talent to compete for the Mayor's beautiful trophy. Alternatives have been extended to Abel Kivlat and Ted Meredith, and it is hoped that these stars will be among the competitors.

Sheppard's reputation is well known to all athletic fans. He, perhaps, has done more than any other individual athlete to uphold the prestige of Uncle Sam in the Olympic games. Despite his many years of athletic service he is still running well today as ever as was shown by his recent races in New York.

The former Olympic champion will have to be at his best to win Saturday night. The local cracks who will be pitted against him include Joe Higgins, the speedy Holy Cross flier who ran Tom Halpin such a close race in the coast games; Frank Capper of Harvard, and Jimmy Power of the B. A. A. All these runners are keen on securing the first leg on the Mayor's trophy.

Calvin Demarest to Play at Imperial

Calvin Demarest, who is in second place in the Champion Billiard Players League, and Marcus Catton, the promising young expert from Chicago, who is making an effort to fill the place made vacant by the retirement of Morningstar, will be the next attraction at Miah Murray's Imperial room.

FOURTH MAJOR LEAGUE IS PROPHECY OF WARD, FORMER BRAVE OWNER

WARD PREDICTS 4TH BIG LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The public will see four major leagues in the near future if a prophecy made by John M. Ward is fulfilled. Ward is retired business manager of the Federals and was formerly owner of the Boston Braves.

The prediction was hurled as a rebuttal to the charge that there was no room for three major leagues.

"The promoters of independent baseball," said John M. Ward, "are prepared to launch another circuit of major pretension, and within the next season or two you will find the Federal champion sifted against this new rival in world's series competition. I do not mean necessarily that the men who have invested their money in James A. Gilmore's enterprises will back a fourth circuit. But they have influence and friends and means ready to furnish the wherewithal at a word's notice.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is plenty of room for a fourth major league and that in time the public will have its eyes opened to the fact. The success of the National and American Leagues following a settlement of their war proved conclusively that continuous baseball has been a blessing to every city which attempted it. Enough cities of major league calibre are still open to continuous promotion to assure the success of a fourth league."

NAMES POSSIBLE CIRCUIT.

Mr. Ward was asked to name the possible makeup of a fourth circuit.

"That is the easiest thing in the world," he replied. "Detroit, Cleveland and Cincinnati are three recognized major league clubs of the West. It would not be difficult to find a fourth with which to complete the Western wing. Louisville always has been a pretty fair sort of town. Then there is Toledo, which is a hustling city and which never has had an opportunity to enthuse over a class of baseball that its population merited.

"Now as to the East. Washington has only one major representative The International League has evacuated Baltimore, where the Federal League gained such a stronghold last season. This big Maryland city would welcome a second major league promotion. New York of course will not be overlooked. The west side of Philadelphia is a most fertile field. There you have a strong Eastern circuit, have you not?

"And there are other fine cities in the East, such as Newark, Providence and Rochester, which would insure a most enthusiastic and compact Eastern wing."

John M. Ward was asked where the promoters would find enough good talent to maintain the established major league reputation in four different circuits.

"GOOD PLAYERS PLENTIFUL."

"The country is swarming with good players," replied John M. "This fact was proved to my satisfaction by the Federal League last season. Take the case of Benny Kauff. The major leagues couldn't see him, yet there are not more than two outfielders in the National and American Leagues more valuable than he. Even the Speaker perhaps made him a trifle. But is no especially fine Kauff will not excel both in a short time, for he is young and ambitious.

"Four major leagues will be seen in the near future, and it will be a big blessing to all who have the interest of the game at heart. For the players it will broaden the scope of his opportunities. For the public it will stimulate interest through continuous baseball in all of the major league cities. For the game it will mean a higher type of play and renewed interest.

"The fourth league is coming surely, for conditions demand it. Certainly the Federal League would welcome the move, as an annual classic for its champion would place the independent circuit on an even footing with the National and American rivals."

Kilbane Is Matched with Kid Williams

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25. — Arrangements for a six-round bout between Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, and Kid Williams, the bantamweight champion, have been completed.

The bout will be held in this city on February 6, and the men agreed to weigh in at 122 pounds ringside. Each of the contestants will receive a purse of $2,250, or thirty-five per cent. of the receipts.

Eli Shifts Hockey Date with Green

Dartmouth has been paid a big compliment by the Yale hockey management in being assigned a date with the Blue seven during the "Prom" festivities at New Haven. The clash between the Blue and the Green was originally slated for last Saturday night, but with the Hanover boys showing all the earmarks of championship Yale concluded that an extension of time would be in order, hence the idea. February 5 is the date chosen.

WRESTLING STARS CLASH TONIGHT

That the fur will fly in all three of the events that make up the excellent wrestling program arranged by Promoter George Tuohey for decision tonight in Mechanics Building appears to be a foregone conclusion, as in addition to settling the question of their relative wrestling ability there is a lot of feeling between the principals in the various numbers. This is especially true of the return meeting between Karl Lemle, the Bohemian, and George Lurich, the remarkable Russian—a feeling that followed their great battle here two years ago. So intense is this that it was only by clever manoeuvring that they were finally brought together again.

LEMLE'S CHANCES GOOD.

The "fans who saw their last battle and have seen Lemle in action this year feel that he has a splendid chance to reverse the result of that meeting. The bout, while limited to an hour, should bring about a decisive result inside that period.

Ilando Bey, the giant Tartar with the "get there style," will meet Waldek Zbyszko, the young Polander, to a finish, best two out of three falls, and unless every sign is misleading the battle will be one of the most rugged that has been staged here in a long time.

TAR REAL STAR.

The Tartar is not so clever as the Pole, but is extremely powerful and tricky, has had wide experience at catch-as-catch-can style and the fact that while wrestling as the "Masked Mystery" in Europe he won 119 straight matches, indicates that he possesses plenty of class.

The curtain raiser will bring together Cyclone " Burns and Michalloff, the Cossack, for one fall, with a thirty-minute limit.

BASEBALL NOTES

DICK KINSELLA HAS SIGNED TO SCOUT for the Giants, acting at one time rumors that he would take a job with the Yankees.

IT HAS JUST BEEN LEARNED THAT Bob Shawkey, the Alliance' young pitcher, offered a broken hand during the World's Series last Fall, when he scraped a line drive.

SHAWKEY DID NOT KNOW OF THE INjury until nearly a month later, when an X-ray revealed a break in the bone.

TESTIMONY SUBMITTED BY J. H. FARrell, secretary of the National Association of Baseball Clubs discloses the information that the minor leagues alone paid $1,650,350 to ball-players in salaries last season.

THE LEE MAGEE CASE WILL BE HEARD in Cleveland tomorrow.

RUSS FORD HAS NAMED HIS LATEST delivery the corkscrew curve, which leads one to the opinion that it is going to approximate one at a magazine among that on the ball field.

HAVING SAVED THE LIFE OF HIS KIdnaper by rescuing him from a grave in the bottom of a mine shaft, Frank Whitted is safe from release to the Phillies.

OWNER GAFFNEY IS SAID TO HAVE promised Whitted a bonus if he can get him to be placed in boosting him out of the quicksands. Soon to be one of one good boost deserving another.

PRESIDENT GUMBERT STATES THAT the owners of the Yankees paid only $500,000 half of the reported sum for the Yankees.

BILL DONOVAN, PAT MORAN AND NAP Lajoie will be the guests of honor at a banquet to be held by the Sporting Writers' Association of Philadelphia tomorrow.

THE FEDERAL LEAGUE UMPIRES WILL be out through a course of fencing training this season.

WHEN CHARLEY HERZOG TRADED Babe Danforth to Jack Coombs, perhaps Herzog assumed all, but along similar lines, and Dode Paskert can tell a different story regarding Killefer.

THE PEDS HAVE SIGNED ERNEST Johnson, shortstop of the Los Angeles club.

MILLER OF THE BROWNS AND JOE Dagger of the White Sox will not be members of the Yankees, but Manager Donovan has decided to take Pipp, High and Hedgs.

ED WALSH HAS BEEN MENTIONED AS one of eleven players to be let out by the White Sox, but the question is strong that Big Ed will be with the Comiskey clan all year, possibly for some time to come.

"The Rabbit's" Column By Walter J. Maranville, SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

THE regular players of the Red Sox are to report at Hot Springs on March 14. This is two weeks later than the time which, it is believed, the Braves will report at Macon.

It will be interesting to see what kind of a start the Red Sox get in the American League race. If they get away well it will be a strong argument for a short training season.

JOE TINKER, of the Chiefs, tells this one on "King" Cole: "Cole took $500 advance money and signed a contract last Winter. He was rather up against it financially and the $500 came in handy. As he finished signing his name, the big pitcher turned to Charles A. Weegman, president of the club, and said: 'Now mind, if this Federal League blows up I want a pass for two that is good in all your Chicago beaneries.'"

THIS one I clipped from a Detroit newspaper:

"Baseball players, says one of the attorneys in the trust case at Chicago, are slaves. They are forced to go South in Spring when nice Winter weather prevails in the North, are made to stop at At hotels, eat the best of food and are otherwise maltreated. It's a terrible life."

"HANDSOME HARRY" McCORmick, formerly a well-known member of the Giants, and now manager of the Chattanooga team in the Southern association, is telling how he narrowly escaped being sent back to the majors this year.

LAST Summer a big league scout, who should have known McCormick in uniform as far as he could see him, wandered down to Chattanooga looking for young players. McCormick was playing right field at the time and cloutting minor league pitching at the rate of .360.

THE scout saw the game and that night met McCormick. "See anything you liked?" asked Harry.

"Well, yes," replied the scout. "I like that right fielder of yours. He can't run much, but he certainly can hit that ball. Name a price on him and I'll take him."

THE next day he saw McCormick's name in the box scores and he hasn't been seen in Chattanooga since.

* * *

JAKE BECKLEY was well along in his '20s when Tommy Leach broke into the big league. Diminutive Tom came heralded as a speed marvel, and all were anxious to see how fleet he was on the bases.

* * *

HIS first time at bat Leach was passed to first, where Beckley was playing. Jake played quite a distance from the bag, but no one could guess the reason until Leach started to steal.

* * *

THEN the players of both teams were amazed to see Beckley rushing to second a step ahead of Leach. Jake slid and reached the bag first. He got up, dusted his knickerbockers and proudly exclaimed:

"Oh, I don't know! These bushers may be fast, but they haven't got all the speed on earth!"

CLEVELAND SEVEN IS COMING HERE

The Cleveland A. C. hockey team, foremost among the claimants to the ice championship of the United States, has been secured for two contests in the Hub. The matches will be played late in February, the Boston A. A. and Arena Hockey clubs opposing the Forest City puckisters.

If the Arena team defeats the Dubcorn gang it is safe for the city title and defeats the New Haven seven, a five-game series will probably be arranged with Cleveland for the championship of the United States. Two games will be played in Cleveland and two in Boston, while the fifth match, if one is necessary, will be staged in either New York or New Haven.

Cobb Sees Pennant for the Red Sox

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 25.—Ty Cobb is of the opinion that the Red Sox will usurp the throne inhabitated by the Athletics when Mack cut loose Eddie Collins, Eddie Plank and Chief Bender.

"I believe," says Ty, "that the league will be far better balanced than for several years, but I cannot see how anybody will stop Carrigan. You can say what you like, but the loss of Collins will be felt in Philadelphia. He was the mainstay of the infield. There is no such infield as that anywhere in the game. His transfer to Chicago will help the White Sox greatly and make of that team a real pennant contender."

HOCKEY NOTES AND GOSSIP

Dr. George W. Tingley and Eddie Doody have been appointed to officiate the hockey matches between the Arena Hockey and the Yale-New Haven Arena team, which is slated for tomorrow night at the latter rink. Those two officials should know the style of play of the players of both teams and they will undoubtedly have their hands full when cuts are indulged in roughing. The latter is barred by the rules governing the game, but it is up to the management to take precautions to see that the rule is not flagrantly violated, it is said.

The last practice of the Arena team was the cut of the season. The fouls shown in the A. A. match were gone over thoroughly and the work of the player was a revelation. "Doc" Tingley, as the team's mentor, knows how to present a clever bunch against the New Haven boys.

* * *

The locals have made good with the hockey fans by their showing in the past week and in order to keep the interest with them they are eager to "show" as much as possible. Those who will not attend the match Saturday night will lose a treat, it is said. There is bound to be a certain degree of roughness, even into hockey, but there is no reason for bloodshed.

* * *

The local fans will have a chance to see how the other players on the Arena team can play Tuesday, when free substitution will be allowed. Manager Clowe, Tarkis Tingley, Ray Bates, Willie High captain, and Walter Whittaker, the latter a former Yale star, will be seen in the game to show against New Haven.

* * *

Dr. Tingley Frost, coach of the New Haven Arena team, is one of the keenest with hockey ever seen in Boston. When a member of the team of the Pilgrim A. A. A. team here last season he was at least a year ahead of the leaders in his year through knowing them. As a local driver there are few better than Tingley. The local man who will oppose the New Haven team will be Captain Bates, the darting little player, who played so sensationally against the Dubcorn seven.

* * *

As a hockey general Captain Bates has few superiors in amateur hockey. His tactics and prowess the others follow. When Bates and Tyrrell skate all out to cover the inside hockey will be shown, but both will play good hockey.

* * *

The same lineups brings together those that are practically the same as against the Dubcorn seven, with Captain Bates as Eccleton for Goalie Tingley, "Pop" Cowie, Tyrrell, Chapman, Red Bates, Walter Bates and Fay Goodale. The New Haven has Donaldson, Ingram, Brown and Kelly from the Dubcorn team, and also Fred Bates, son of he is eligible to play Tuesday night.

* * *

There will be free substitution in the game, so that teams may carry ten men and the same players will have a chance to play their shots.

* * *

The Eastern A team, led by Clifford Minot, the old Harvard football star, will practice in the Arena rink next week in preparation for the game with West Point. The Easterners belong to Quebec some of the best amateurs on the Canadian skating balloon will be on the forward line. Offie Clark is the goal tender, and Lou Tender, Jr., will be in the net. Newsome Erskine, the former Yale football star, will support Chadwick and Captain Minot on the defense.

Hemphill Seeks Job in the Big Leagues

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 25.—Charley Hemphill, the former New York American player, and Louis Brown, back to his playing weight as a result of a month's work here, left today for home in Youngstown, O., today. Hemphill is a free agent. He is in receipt of offers from the Southern Association and Western League, but declares he hopes to land a big league engagement.

Fordham to Meet Indians.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The Fordham football team will play the Carlisle Indian eleven here next Fall. The exact date has not been settled.

SCHOOL HOCKEY TITLE AT STAKE

The Greater Boston Interscholastic hockey championship may be settled this week. It looks as if the match between Milton High and Boston English, to decide the issue, will be staged at the Arena Friday, the rule of which is that the team finishing first will be settled then and there.

It is possible, though not probable, however, that Hindge may receive a set-back when it meets Somerville High at the Arena this afternoon. If such an event should happen, some interesting developments would be attached to the standing of the Cantabs and Methodists.

Here is the standing of the league:

	W.	L.	P. C.
Hindge Tech	2	0	1.000
Melrose	2	0	1.000
Medford	2	1	.667
Arlington	1	2	.333
Newton	1	2	.333
Cambridge Latin	0	2	.000
Somerville	0	2	.000

Farrell Still Owns Yankees; Sale Is Not Yet Completed

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Frank Farrell and his associates still own the New York American League baseball club. That was the substance of the admission made today by Colonel Jacob Ruppert, when questioned about the assertion made in Chicago by Captain T. L. Huston, his associate, to the effect that they had only an option on the club.

"It is true that we have not yet taken over the Yankees," said Colonel Ruppert. "We intend, however, to complete the deal on Saturday, when all the stock will be turned over to us free of all incumbrances."

On January 7 it was announced here that the final details of the transfer of the club had been completed, Colonel Ruppert and Captain Huston assuming control with the passing of the stock by Frank Farrell, the former executive head of the club.

Penn Relay Star Leaves College

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—Harold Kelly, who was depended upon to round out Penn's one-mile relay team, has left the Quaker university and has entered his father's business in Duluth, Minn. Last year, shortly before the relay carnival at Franklin Field, Kelly pulled a tendon in his leg. When the intercollegiates approached he was just rounding into form. He entered and, running with a brace on his leg, took sixth place in the quarter mile.

Guy Nickalls Says He Will Coach Yale Varsity Crew Again

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 25.—Guy Nickalls, the Oxford coach who turned out a championship crew at Yale last year, will return to New Haven early in February to resume his work of drilling the Blue oarsmen, it was received by Yale crew authorities from Coach Nickalls states that he will reach New Haven as he had previously planned.

There had been some doubt as to whether the English oarsman could return to the United States when he planned. His duties in connection with recruiting English forces in London have kept him exceptionally busy. His return to Yale was made conditional last Fall on the fact that his services to the English government were not indispensable.

Frank Gotch Not to Wrestle, Says Klank

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Jan. 25.—Emil Klank, Frank Gotch's manager, is in Hot Springs and declares that the wrestling champion has retired from the game for good. "Gotch recently refereed a match in a small Minnesota town between Joe Stecher, a young Nebraska farmer boy, and John Nelson, a Swede," Klank says. "Stecher was badly outweighed but won in straight falls. Gotch thinks highly of the kid and has taken him under his wing. Frank looks for Stecher to develop into the greatest wrestler of them all."

Zimmerman Sued by Wife; Alleges Ball Star Is Cruel

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — Heinie Zimmerman, third baseman of the Chicago Cubs, has been made defendant in a suit for separation begun by Mrs. Helen Conway Zimmerman of the Bronx. It was learned today. Cruelty, abusive language and refusal to support are the grounds alleged by the nineteen-year old wife of the baseball star.

Although the suit alleges "Heinie" is paid $7,000 a year by the Chicago club, she charges he has not sent any money to support her for some time, except a $5 sold piece which he sent as a Christmas present for their infant daughter, Norraine. They were married May 1, 1913.

Mrs. Zimmerman asks $125 a month alimony and $500 allowance for counsel fees.

Malden High After Louden as Coach

The Malden High school is seeking the services of "Ted" Louden to coach the athletic teams. Louden is one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Dartmouth. Last year he assisted Frank Cavanaugh in mastering the Green football team. He knows a lot about the gridiron game, and it is especially for this reason that Malden is anxious to land him.

Smith-Levinsky Go Off.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 25.—An intended twenty-round match here yesterday between "Kingfish" Smith and "Battling" Levinsky, heavyweights, was indefinitely postponed because of weather conditions.

HARVARD-YALE RELAY RACE ON

Harvard and Yale will meet in their annual relay race at the B. A. A. games to be held in Mechanics Building, February 6. This announcement was welcomed today by the thousands interested in this track classic, as up to now it was thought the race would not be run.

Yale has had some trouble in getting together a good relay team, and to top it all she has lost one of her best runners in George Brown, who was recently reported open for suspendicitis.

Brown's condition makes it practically impossible for him to run. He is considered one of the best middle distance runners at Yale. For these reasons it was believed that the race would be declared off.

The relay will be over the 4,136-yard distance, each man covering 743 yards.

'Pro' Charge Puts Low Off Dartmouth Nine

HANOVER, Jan. 25.—The Dartmouth athletic council has declared Fletcher Low, '15, of South Kensington, ineligible to again represent the Green on the baseball diamond, the charge being that of professionalism. The decision is one of the severest blows that could be dealt the hopes of Dartmouth's baseball followers.

Low played with the Progressives of Beverly, Mass., last Summer, and although the other members of the team received pay for their services, the Dartmouth star did not.

Mitchell The Tailor's Banquet

which was held solely for the purpose of criticism, brought forth the following question: "Do advertised prices as low as $8.75 hurt our business?"

My answer to the above question, in substance, was as follows: "Reading a profit in a tailoring business, volume of which is as large as mine, elimination of waste is absolutely necessary. Selling suits at a price as low as $8.75 accomplishes two things, first, the doing away with the natural accumulation of short ends and completely turning over my stock every so often; second, the building a customer at a price which warrants his getting acquainted with me.

Thousands of customers, that I sell $15, $18 and $20 orders in the busy seasons, were brought to my door with the possibility of buying a suit for a price of $8.75 or $10.00, which, when purchased to piece out a season, he finds to his surprise that he had the same goods he was accustomed to paying twice or three times as much for. On coming into my store as a stranger, he was awakened to the fact of my enormous stock and the variety of styles which I carry. He found when he got his suit he had the ideas and designing knowledge worked into it as fine as any tailor in the country could produce, because, no matter how low in price a suit may be that is ordered of me, the patterns by which it is cut are designed by J. Caul Macdonald, the highest priced designer in the country.

It is a custom for me to gather my cutters and designers together once a month at the banquet table, where criticisms and business betterment talks are asked for. This answers a question that one of my employes asked me and many of my customers have suggested.

Any of my salesmen in either of my stores would be pleased to go into details on this matter with any customer who would be interested.

MITCHELL, The Tailor.

January Sale of Ends. I have taken a big accumulation of ends from all my stores and gathered them here in my floaton store. Not a yard of these goods would be bought to sell under $15, $18 and $20, and are guaranteed absolutely all wool or worsted, and all of them have enough cloth to make three-piece suits. I have them in all shades, dark gray, blue and all style effects. On taking stock I find too many ends. I intend to start the spring season with brand new fresh goods. Blue serges, Globe black unfinished worsteds and Standish worsteds included.

Take Your Pick—Suit or Overcoat to Order $8.75

My honest belief is that these suitings cannot be bought under $15.00 of this price in this town, and I guarantee to every man ordering one of these suits at a price of $8.75 that if he can purchase this same cloth within $5.00 more of this price, I positively guarantee to refund you the $8.75 you paid for your suit and deliver to you the suit absolutely free.

Why So Many Marriages Fail

Beatrice Fairfax Thinks the World Is Too Mercenary

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A VERY clever young lawyer recently informed me that he would not marry until he had an income of $10,000 a year and a big nestegg to tide him over the possible loss of some important client's patronage. This extravagant viewpoint is fairly characteristic of our times. Coming from the lawyer to the man in mercantile life, and so on down to the day worker, the standard of the income upon which one may safely marry gradually decreases. But modern standards of what a young couple can start out on are vastly different from those of our parents' day.

Girls are trained to demand luxury as an integral part of their life. Men have accustomed themselves to think of women as lilies of the field who toil not, but who, by the elegance of their raiment, suggest the prosperity of the man who is paying for it.

No wonder modern marriages are so frequently failures. No wonder married men of forty-five are seen trailing around outside their own homes. No wonder women old enough to know better are found feverishly pursuing attention and admiration. Marriages that are based on love may go on the rocks. But when love is denied and the heart is starved that a certain standard of affluence may be reached, the resulting marriage is bound to go on the rocks.

AND THE HEART CHANGES

By the time the young lawyer has reached the $10,000 standard he sets himself; when the business man acquires the $5,000 he insists on; or by the time the clerk has risen to the $1,500 he thinks necessary, one of two things has happened. Either the heart denied its natural heritage of love, marriage and a home satisfies itself on unworthy emotions, or emotion denied atrophies, and the once warm and loving nature settles into a mold of cold calculation.

The girl who doesn't love a man enough to live with him in a small flat and do her own work, even though she is used to a mansion and three maids to wait on her, does not know the meaning of "for better, for worse." The woman who is not sufficiently interested in her husband's life work to help him do it by sharing his life's burden's has no real, lasting love for him. "For richer, for poorer," means something. A millionaire's riches may vanish over night, and then the woman he only knew how to win by rich gifts and luxury is all too likely to turn from the aridness of a life which never knew love and is now denied the golden rain that made it a land of milk and honey.

If the modern man wants to have a fair offering to bring his wife, let him bring her love, high ideals, clean living and sympathy—that will make her feel rich indeed. But all the cold dollars in the world will not buy her deep feelings and lasting emotion, such as are needed to be the foundation of love and marriage.

Men seem to encourage women to become well-dressed manikins and then turn from them after a few years of matrimony have proven that a tailor's model may be all external glitter with no deep, satisfying feelings with which to respond to or to kindle love.

ALL ON A FALSE PREMISE

The whole system is based on false and mercenary standards. Luxury, elegance and show have come to take the place of heart, home and happiness.

The best of life ought to come through love and marriage. Marriage ought to mean a safe harbor, sunlit and placid. From this, man and wife ought to put out together for occasional happy excursions into the big sea of life. And they never would be seen leaving the harbor if it were sunlit and happy and if love had piloted them into port.

A girl who really loves a man will gladly join her lot with his, and acting as partner as well as wife, help him to succeed. This is one of the greatest bonds to make wedlock happy as well as holy. And one of the biggest ties that bind man and wife together.

No man has a right to set himself a coldly mercenary standard of the amount he must have on which to marry. No man has a right to deny the girl he loves a chance to work by his side and sacrifice for his sake. In loyal love all through life he can more than repay her. But if he cheats her of her right to love instead of luxurious support and himself of a chance at really being loved, there is no way of ever making up the loss.

Delusion

The Lover Sees a Halo, and It's Only a Hat

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company

THERE was a young chap with a "broken heart" who pouted to me a day ago—his hair was ruffled and his heart was cracked, and the world was black and blue like his feelings, and, said I, after his tale was told (while I smiled behind my face where he couldn't see—oh, smiled very hard—for you see he complained that the "girl" was not "what she seemed to be," and I knew that she was just exactly what she had always been since she was in frocks above her knees and chewed her lead pencil and flipped her braids over her shoulders; it all lay, this change, with this poor chap and the spectacles that Danny had fitted him with)—well, after his tale was told, said I, the soberest I could manage: "You were looking through Love's telescope, poor chap—that's all. And the little maid who couldn't help that you were seeing her through the glorifying end of it, seemed to your rose-blinded eyes to be wearing above her braids a glowing, gleaming halo that cut-glittered and out-rayed the circlet of any saint. There were downy, silvery wings shadowing her shoulders, too, and her eyes were stars out of the meadows of Paradise. And now, dear chap, you've pushed aside the telescope and taken a look for yourself. And the halo is only a HAT (that might cost a chap more than he guesses), and the wings are the rustle of her skirts, and her eyes are just kind, laughing gray ones that many folks have. It's you—you are seeing different—where you saw halo there is only hat—and remember that it always was a hat!"—NELL BRINKLEY.

A Fable for the Fair

The Young Man Who Thought Too Well of Himself

By ANNE LISLE

THERE was once a nineteen-year-old boy who had "high ideals" and lived "a blameless life." Did he take this for granted as a simple and decent proceeding which might be accepted as calmly as the fact that he was neither a thief nor a murderer? Not at all. He insisted on taking every one he met aside and telling them what a very "rotten place the world was," and how he meant to hold himself far above its allurements and temptations.

By the time he was twenty-nine he was fully convinced that Sir Galahad would have blushed with shame at his own shortcomings had they met.

At this stage of the game he met a very charming young woman of twenty-five. And he fell very much in love with her. He set about his wooing by impressing upon her how spotless he was. He never permitted her to forget for one moment what a treasure she was getting. He insisted on explaining to her that his standards were as high as her own. The girl liked his ideals, but she had all her life taken them for granted, and she no more expected to hear them boasted of than she thought a man would tell how he had never struck his mother or stolen small change from his father's pockets.

So she turned on the man and suggested that if his ideals were as high as hers perhaps they weren't high at all!

And the man, who had no sense of humor, fled from her in horror. Since even the woman he had condescended to love had confessed herself weak and human, he concluded that he was the one sound apple in a whole world full of rotten fruit. He also concluded that his was a lonesome position.

So he promptly went off and drank himself to death.

MORAL.—The virtue whose chief virtue lies in admiring its own sanctity hasn't any very practical wearing qualities.

Plenty Good Enough

Mrs. Showey was determined to have a showy affair for her daughter's wedding.

"Have what you like, my child," said the lavish parent.

"Well, then, for one thing, let the staircase, floors and hall be polished for the wedding," implored the spoilt child. "All these society affairs have it."

Her will was law.

"Of course, I hope you thoroughly understand your business," inquired Mrs. S. of the skilled polisher when he arrived.

"Well, ma'am, I don't like to praise myself," he answered diffidently, "but actions speak louder than words. I polished the floor of Goldelle's drawing-room last Spring, and four people broke their limbs. Only last week I polished the grand staircase what was used at a wedding reception, and the bridegroom slid and broke his leg. So I don't think you need worry about this job, ma'am!"

Secondary

A man who was extravagantly fond of his dogs one day saw his youngest son kick his favorite pup. "You unmannerly young cub!" roared the irate parent, "how dare you kick my dog? I'll teach you how to behave yourself better!" When the offender had been soundly thrashed the father wiped the perspiration from his forehead. "Let this be a lesson to you," he said, "how to treat my dogs! And now that I think of it, you've been disrespectful to your mother of late!" but Nell—and she'd never tell on me!" (To be continued.)

THE FORTUNES OF FANNY

Fanny Receives Flowers from Joe and Feels a Little Less Cast Down

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER L.

Copyright, 1915, Star Company.

JOE BROWN'S manner was preoccupied as he bade Nellie Benson goodnight. He had many things on his mind, and they thrust out other considerations. Yet he thanked his hostess politely for her invitation to "come in soon."

"I'll be here to see you all again before long," he promised.

"What's the matter with comin' Sunday night?" Nellie asked. "Helen and Grace'll be home then."

There was a gleam of mischief in her eyes that made him suspect that some one besides Helen and Grace would be there. On the chance that his suspicions might be correct he accepted promptly. "All right," he said. "You're very kind, and I'll be glad to drop in then."

"If you care to you can come to supper at seven," Nellie called after him as he ran downstairs.

"I'd love to," he called back. Then he chided himself for fancying that Fanny Hedden was to be a guest of Nellie's next Sunday evening. He would not let himself anticipate that happiness—for he would hate to be disappointed.

He walked for many blocks, pondering what Nellie had told him, piecing out the facts with his own imaginings. Since Crandall was interested in the barber shop, it must have been sure that Fanny had become well acquainted with him. Nellie had told him that one of the customers in Madame Eldett's—"a man Fan had manicured"—had secured a place for the lonely girl when Madame had discharged her. Doubtless, it was Crandall, and he had taken advantage of the unsophisticated child's need of work to put her where she would have to accept his attentions or lose her position. And when she had repulsed him he had her discharged. And she, weak from illness, had at last sought the position of housemaid as the only refuge from starvation. She had chosen this rather than accept Crandall's favors.

JOE DECIDES THAT FANNY IS A FINE GIRL

Brave girl! Fine, noble girl! He thrilled as he thought of her principles and what she had endured for them. Crandall had seen her yesterday in the park and had pleaded with her to set aside her scruples. How magnificently she had defied him as she sprang to her feet and faced him! Ah—that was the kind of woman a man should love! Joe thanked the kind fates that had brought him her way just in time to save her from that cur's brutality.

It was past midnight before the dreaming lover went home that night, yet the hours had passed on wings as he walked the prosaic streets, surrounded by a mental atmosphere of poetry and beauty. The story of the poor little housemaid seemed to him like a wonderful romance such as he had read when he was a boy. But in it he did not figure as the Prince Charming who would release her from the spell of poverty that bound her, but only as a commonplace working man unworthy her regard, yet longing to make himself worthy of her, counting it the highest honor in the world to be allowed to love her and work for her.

It was not to be expected, he told himself, that Fanny would care for him at first, but he would strive to win her respect, and, perhaps, some time she might get to care for him a little.

And meanwhile, how was she to live? And how was he to become acquainted with her?

The last difficulty Nellie Benson might help him solve. The first question he could not answer, and his heart sank in discouragement as he tried to do so. What was he, and what was his love worth since it could not bring to this girl such ease and help as she deserved?

He felt no shame in loving Mrs. Abbott's maid. In doing the only honest work she could get she had not lowered herself in his eyes. Of course it girded him to think of her in her present position—for he would have been happy to see her waited upon, not waiting on others. Yet no decent work was degrading. He would believe that some way would be found out of the tangle.

Love is sure it can compel all things to do its bidding. And not—well, never mind, as long as love remains!

Fanny, discouraged, disheartened, toiled on at the task she hated. Looking back it seemed as if years had passed since she had been happy. She tried to do her duties well, but her heart was not in them. Again and again she thought of Joe Brown's behavior last Thursday night—of how strong he was, how upright, how altogether nice.

"He will marry some girl like his sister—a girl who has never gone through such experience as I have gone through to keep herself from starving," she mused bitterly. "I suppose if grandmother had lived, I might have been the kind of girl he would have cared to know. As it is, I am only a servant."

She did not think of Joe Brown when on Saturday morning the hallboy handed her a parcel of flowers addressed to herself.

She took it to her room before opening it. Some instinct made her wish to be alone and secure from observation at this moment. An envelope was fastened to the stems of the beautiful sweet peas, revealed by the removal of the tissue paper, and she opened it eagerly. The enclosed card bore the name "Joseph Brown," and had evidently been written by the sender himself. It was not a fashionable engraved bit of pasteboard, yet it made her breath come quickly.

How did he know her address? How dear it was of him to think enough about her to send her these flowers! But of course he had been sorry for her—that was all. And equally, of course, he had no idea that she was a servant. If he had known it he would never have sent her flowers. A tear or two of self pity fell among the blossoms as she bent over them. At last she put the sweet peas on the windowsill of her little room.

"I shall wear them to Nell's tomorrow evening," she murmured. "The girls can think I bought them myself. If I wear flowers, nobody will suspect that I'm a servant. Nobody but Nell—and she'd never tell on me!"

SHEARER URGES SUBWAY STATION

Urgent reasons for a subway station at Arlington street are given in a letter written to the AMERICAN by W. L. Shearer, president of the Paine Furniture Company, and he stresses that the omission of the station has "worked a decided hardship upon the people of Greater Boston."

Petitions requesting the Legislature to provide for this station in the new Boylston street subway are being widely circulated. President Shearer says in his letter:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I want to express heartily my appreciation of your support in this public movement to obtain a subway station at Arlington street.

I am convinced, after a careful study of the situation, and from talking with a large number of substantial citizens, who frequently go and come from this important business district, that the public is greatly inconvenienced by the present system of transportation on Boylston street; that the omission of a subway station at Arlington street has worked a decided hardship upon the people of Greater Boston.

I have personally asked a large number of my customers to sign this petition, and they have done so willingly and enthusiastically; many volunteering to circulate the petition among their friends. This petition, regarding the legislative act to authorize a station in the Boylston street subway at Arlington street, is now being circulated in the nearly every store and public building in this section.

VITALLY IMPORTANT.

I am also convinced that this station at Arlington street is vitally important for the future welfare of the section; to relieve the congestion in the present restricted retail business district; to extend the business centre of Boston, and to give additional metropolitan transit facilities.

It is the almost unanimous opinion of everyone familiar with the development of Boston, that the first step toward expansion is up Boylston street, and at the present time, this important section is not possessed of sufficient transportation facilities.

Already Boylston street is showing the effects of insufficient transportation, by the many signs showing stores for sale and to let. It has been stated that there were thirty-four such signs, by actual count of recent date.

At the present time, according to figures supplied from the Boston Transit Commission, the maximum distance between Boylston street station and Copley square transfer is 4000 feet or more than three-quarters of a mile, the normally distance is 2400 feet or more than three-fifths (3-5) of a mile, which often means a long walk, an agonizing wait for car or tiresome waiting for a car, both when coming into and going out of Boston.

During the past months, upwards of 20,000 people signed the petition being from Brookline, the Newtons and other towns and cities on the line of this Boylston street subway. I have signed their names to a petition for this station at Arlington street, and the number of people interested has also affected has not begun to be completely canvassed.

The Boylston street merchants have formed the Arlington Business Men's Association to exert every effort toward obtaining this station.

FORM ASSOCIATION.

The Boylston street real estate owners have also formed a similar association.

Furthermore, it was the consensus of opinion among Boylston street merchants and property owners, as well as many others, when the subway was being constructed, that there was to be a subway station at Arlington street.

James M. Curley, Mayor of Boston, has expressed to me personally his hearty approval of our efforts, saying that he firmly believes for the best interests of the city of Boston that there should be a subway station at Arlington street.

Mr. A. Shuman, one of Boston's leading merchants and favorite taxpayers, said in part in a recent letter:

"I am very glad that your association is endeavoring to obtain a subway station at Arlington street. It is not right and fair that the stores that are doing business on Boylston street, or to the taxpayers who are responsible for the assessment of Arlington street, to have no station in that locality."

MERCHANTS SIGN.

Jordan Marsh Co., William Filene & Sons' Company and other merchants on Washington street have gladly signed the petition, stating that they considered this subway station a necessity for the growth of Boston, that Boston cannot be increased by congestion, but rather by broadening out; by adding more territory, and extending the metropolitan business district.

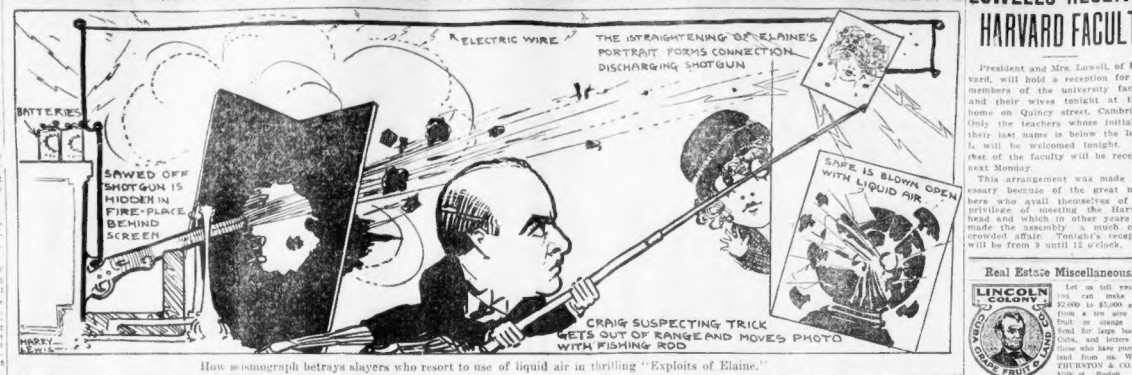
When the Cort Theatre was built in this new business section, and when the Paine Furniture Company moved from the other end of the city, opening their new tea-story block, it was generally understood that there was to be a subway station at Arlington street.

Heads of banks, hotels and stores on Boylston street have repeatedly told me personally that the Brookline and Newton people are most insistent upon having this new station at Arlington street, and are most inconvenienced by its omission. This has been our experience with hundreds of customers of the Paine Furniture Company.

Assuring you that your support is appreciated, I am, very sincerely yours,

W. L. SHEARER, President,
Paine Furniture Company.

SCIENCE REVEALS SERIES OF WONDERS IN 'EXPLOITS OF ELAINE'



How seismograph betrays slayers who resort to use of liquid air in thrilling "Exploits of Elaine."

COUNCIL AGAIN CLOSES THE DOOR

Resuming the even tenor of its time-worn way, the Executive Council has closed its doors. Public hearings are now a matter of history. This fetish to the custom that prevailed in the "dark ages" was the feature of the first Council meeting. The scribes were seated in their accustomed places. A parlon hearing was begun. Lieutenant-Governor Grafton D. Cushing "suggested" that the Council would hear the case in "Executive Session." Brief discussion followed. "They don't want to hear these cases," said Mr. Cushing. "Yes we do," replied the scribes. "The committee will go into Executive Session," said Mr. Cushing. There was no alternative. The newspapermen departed. In the regular order of things the Council will appoint a news censor.

Secrecy at Council meetings was thrown to the winds by the Council of last year. The meetings were public. Not a solitary syllable was deleted. That Council consisted of seven Democrats and two Republicans. The return to a "star chamber" session was decided by the new Council. This Council consists of eight Republicans and one Democrat. Governor Walsh has repeatedly insisted that the Council should be abolished in order that the full burden of responsibility could rest upon the shoulders of the governor. But the door is again closed. Mr. Taxpayer is on the outside.

With the attention of the Legislature engrossed by the vast problem of relieving immediate relief to the unemployed, the situation recalls the earlier efforts of an "almighty" to fortify the cities against just such a serious condition as now confronts us. But four years ago a bill "to provide relief for the unemployed in times of industrial stress" was defeated by the conservative Legislature. Had the bill been enacted into law, Governor Walsh and the Executive Council could have appropriated $100,000 without the long delay that attends the present procedure and the unemployed would have been at work weeks ago building State boulevards under the direction of the Metropolitan Park Commission.

Gibbons Opposes Literacy Test

BALTIMORE, Jan. 25.—At a meeting here to express opposition to the literacy test clause of the immigration bill, a letter was read from Cardinal Gibbons in which he said delay that attended the bill whenever Wilson would veto the bill because of the literacy test.

Price of Prunes Is Bound Upward

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The speculative prune market was bullish today, price altitude of 10,000 feet, is to be boosted still a bit higher, wholesale grocers say. The California prune is the cheap soup box corn. Epicures not mince words. I have been tempted to come into my pulpit and call a spade a spade. Spiritual effectiveness has hell in its talks. Slang is the identical distance between two points as the matter of language. I would give half my possessions to have Stanley come here."

GARDNER, Jan. 25.—Sixteen planer castings, weighing five tons each, will soon be shipped by the Hoglund Factory, the Finnish government. The factory is being run overtime to complete the work.

Walsh to Have Law Office Here

Governor Walsh is planning to open a law office in Boston—probably on State street—early in February. His present office is in Fitchburg, where he is in partnership with his brother, Major Thomas Walsh.

Seismograph and Liquid Air Figure in Remarkable Demonstration; Aid Everyday Life.

SCIENCE spreads its wonders in attractive and exciting fashion to him who turns to discuss the case. Sliding back a small door in the wall he reveals an instrument like a bent and jointed pencil point.

"We have had visitors," he remarks. "The instrument moves slowly over a piece of paper, registering the zigzag, wandering steps of the intelligent Elaine, noting that her portrait hangs crookedly upon the wall, starts forward like a straightened spring. Suddenly, laying a restraining hand upon her wrist, he bids her and the other to leave the room. The mystery of that crooked picture will be disclosed to you in the fascinating pictures that complete the first reel.

The butler, calm of face, enigmatic of manner, brings to Miss Elaine, in her home, a package nearly a foot square, saying:

"Mr. Kennedy said that this box contains some clews. He wishes you to put it into the safe."

As she unlocks the safe and places the package in it, her telephone rings.

"I—er—I—er—Just phoned to ask whether you are all right," came in a lower-like tone from the wire.

"Why, yes, Mr. Kennedy, I am all right. Why do you ask?"

"I have just placed in the safe the box of clues you sent me."

"I—I—I—no no box. Don't go near the safe until I come." shouts the detective.

"The safe is 'n a cold sweat," exclaims the girl as he arrives. His laboratory table resembles a light frost exuding from the steel. In a hurry while the work of destruction has been done. The false box of clues had been a block of cold air. Plainly the purpose was to destroy the safe and some coveted document which it contained. Investigation of the agreement not found the night the banker was murdered because of the proofs he had made the "mistake" in the address.

KREISLER PLEASES AT THE SYMPHONY

Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, returned to Symphony Hall yesterday and once again gave great pleasure to an enthusiastic audience which filled the hall and the stage.

The music he chose yesterday was, as is he himself, honest, dignified, human. It reached the chords of the human heart. He was not mere mechanical technician "showing off" dizzying runs and brilliant, dazzling nothings, but a real violinist, making his hearers feel, as the player should, the very soul of the soul which the violin brings forth.

He played his own "introduction and Scherzo" for violin alone, and to hear it was to know, as he seldom known, why the violin stands as the most human of all instruments—a great organ in the orchestra, the human voice—all united in one.

The program consisted also for its main number, Vieuxtemps Concerto in A Minor, the adagio movement of which, played most by him in accordance with its simple, beautiful melody.

For those who like Bach, he played the suite in E Minor, which received polite approbation, while the fugue in G Minor, which came after it on the program, received tremendous applause, for aside from the fact that he is a master-player a supremacy in violin works of this form.

The violinist was very generous with encores and these were chosen, as was the entire program, with a view to giving deep, lasting pleasure to his hearers rather than to emphasize what the world can do—and Kreisler is a master violinist.

Carl Lamson was associated with his expert accompaniments. They were cast with just the right degree of reticence to be appointed with the violinist.

Next Sunday afternoon Frieda Hempel of the Metropolitan Opera House will give the concert, assisted by Emma Roberts, contralto, and Heinrich Gebhard, pianist.

Man Is Killed by Dog He Befriended

HOLDEN, Jan. 25.—Fred Augustus Oliver's kindness to a stray dog resulted in his death today. Fred Augustus Oliver died here, despite the efforts of two physicians to save his life. Oliver was told the canine lay in a ditch whining as if in pain. He rescued the animal. A few minutes later the dog imbedded his teeth in Oliver's left ear and jugular vein. Oliver thought nothing of the wound until Wednesday, when he became ill. He grew steadily worse until death came. He was forty-seven years old.

Recital at Toy Theatre Success

Miss King-Clark and George Proctor shared in a splendid program at last night's Toy Theatre recital. The concert was up to the high mark set in the course of recitals at the Toy Theatre, and an appreciative audience was generous with its applause.

Miss King-Clark was in excellent voice and sang an even dozen songs in three groups and a thirteenth song in response to long-continued handclapping. Her singing of a delicious vocal tidbit by Leoncavallo, "Leaves and the Wind," was signally fine. In fact, was her rendering of "Quel Ruscelletto," "Willow, Willow, "Du bist wie eine Blume" and three Arie Antiche songs, Tschaikowsky's "Pendant le Bal," Gretschaninow's "Frisch eat le Herz" and the Bach-Gounod arrangement of "Berceuse" and "Ballade in G minor" by Godard, "Marionettes" by Scherbatcheff and a most effetching "Galante Moderne" by Scambati.

Gardner to Show Up U. S. Reserve

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Representative Augustus P. Gardner, of Massachusetts contemplates inviting the entire reserve army of the United States to dine with him in Washington.

Mr. Gardner seeks to give his suggested invitation a practical application. Two of the sixteen reservists live in California and one of them in Porto Rico.

Arrogant Defiance of Law Is a Menace to Society

"To hell with the United States government!" said the functionary in charge of the Liebig Fertilizer Works at Roosevelt, N. J., to a properly accredited investigator from the United States Commission for the Investigation of Industrial Relations. "You can't come in here."

There spoke the arrogant anarchy which is manifested by too many rich employers of labor today. Though the man who voiced it was a deputy sheriff, he expressed views his superiors seem to hold. He enunciated the doctrine which the day before had found practical exemplification in the killing and wounding of unarmed strikers by thugs enrolled as sheriff's deputies. He had seen the same deputies, fresh from their indictment for manslaughter, reengaged and sent forth again to overawe and terrorize the former workmen of the company. His verbal defiance of the law probably seemed to him to be quite in accord with his employers' policy. In fact, WHAT HE SAID WAS MILD COMPARED WITH WHAT THEY DID.

"Injunctions don't go here!" said the arrogant political boss of Gravesend, John Y. McKane, as he tore up the mandate of a New York court some years ago. But in the end the writ "went," and the dethroned boss also went—to Sing Sing.

"Hang the law! Throttle the law! Stab the law!" cried a ranting agitator at Chicago in a moment of inflammatory invective. For the act which his words incited he and three misguided companions paid with their lives.

Against defiant foes like McKane or the Chicago anarchists the law has been quite able to protect itself. Against the new anarchy of arrogant wealth it will, no doubt, be equally potent.

It is because such incidents as those that have occurred at Roosevelt are so thoroughly out of harmony with the spirit of progressive employers today that they stand out in such offensive ugliness to arouse the resentment of the nation. There could be no more striking illustration of the contrast of the old and the new spirit than was afforded by Henry Ford, head of an industry employing more than fifty thousand men at far above the customary wage, testifying before the commission as to the complete success of his profit-sharing plan at the very moment when the agent of the Chemical Trust, which had sought to keep wages down by the aid of New York gunmen, was defying the commission's agent to enter its plant.

In Colorado, in West Virginia and now in New Jersey this tendency of corporate wealth to arrogate to itself power superior to the law, and to defy the State which created it and to which in the end it must look for protection, has lately been manifested. Capital itself should be first and most emphatic in its condemnation of such affronts to society. Employers as a whole will be ill-advised if they fail to purge themselves of association with the lawless oppressors of labor and violators of law. The policy of a Ford brings industrial peace, prosperity and honor. The policy profanely but adequately expressed by the official at the Liebig works leads only to industrial anarchy and ultimate disaster.

The People Will Never Be Satisfied Until the Russell Case Is Settled by a Jury

It is interesting to note the movement among the townspeople of the Daniel Blake Russell family in Melrose to open that extraordinary will case.

No work of fiction, no story of mystery, no figment of the imagination of Dumas, Poe or Conan Doyle ever equalled in strangeness the features of this remarkable case of identity.

It is said that nothing is ever settled until it is settled right. Certainly the honor of justice in this Commonwealth has been severely tried by this unusual case. It has been most unfortunate, both for the reputation of our courts and for the peace of mind of those who are interested in the case, that a jury has not so far been allowed to settle it.

The extraordinary character of Daniel Blake Russell, the Dakota claimant, and the manner in which he has satisfied old acquaintances of the lost man and also those disinterested persons who attended the trial, make it certain that this case can never be permanently settled against him without leaving a very disagreeable aftermath, unless it is settled by a jury of twelve men, as all our great controversies ought to be settled.

Inklings and Thinklings

French communique refers to fighting on "Hill 425." Just think of having to write a glowing description of the Rough Riders' glorious charge up "Hill 7343." Or what if Funston had swum across "River 2387"?

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

The Cow Cure

It has been found that after feeding a cow with poison ivy, children suffering from ivy poisoning were relieved by drinking her milk. Further experimentation is being made with a view to extending this method of treatment to other maladies.

WE'VE been feeding prussic acid and bi-chloride to the cow,
We've been treating her with hydrates and atropia,
And in case of sudden illness we don't call the doctor now—
For the cow is just a walking pharmacopoeia.
If a microbe or a ptomaine or their ill-conditioned ilk
In the baby's little tummy start to frolic,
There are always anti-toxins manufactured in the milk
Which will put an end to every form of colic.

If a person swallows gasoline or varnish by mistake
For the items of his right and proper diet;
He gulps down a little cow's milk, and in less than half a shake
He again has settled down in peace and quiet.
And when father's hair is falling, as, alas, it's doing now,
We advise him not to singe or dope or shave it;
We are going to give a little hair restorer to the cow,
And a glass of milk, we really hope, will save it.

If is cheaper than the doctor and the cow is right on hand,
Fully doped with every alkaline solution,
Giving first aid to the injured any time there's a demand
For a moving therapeutic institution.
There is only one objection to the simple system now—
Though, in theory, she should grow daily stronger;
There are certain serious symptoms of decadence in the cow,
And we fear that she will last but little longer.

Nothing Is Wholly Useless

Ulinger Bresnahan recently traded a ball player for a fairly good dog. Soon use the lovely busher, his nerve may be of brass;
His feet of lead; of bone his head;
and both his arms of glass;
Although he may regard the ball as something new and strange.
And never stop when flies are popped till he is out of range,
Don't sell him to the minor leagues,
but let him stick around,
And maybe you can trade him for a hound!

Merely a Good Beginning

The creation of a naval board to take the control of the ships and their crews out of Secretary Daniels' hands is, of course, an excellent thing. But Congress has still the duty of creating a board of some kind to take the control of the State Department out of Mr. Bryan's hands.

Speak, Sam, for Me

"I scarcely know how to talk about myself," says President Wilson. But what does that matter, with Sam Blythe only a block and a half away, and a telephone right into the Hibbs Building?

Reopening an Old Question

There is a sausage factory strike in Hoboken, N. J., and the query: "Where, Oh, Where is My Little Dog Gone?" once more arises to vex us.

Concerning Note-Writing

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

"WRITE me a fair, even-minded, honest hand, unvexed with desperate blots or skulking interlineations."

This excellent bit of advice was given once by a literary man to his sister.

A fair, even, legible, straightforward handwriting—that is one of the essentials in the art of note-writing. A note with a neat appearance, written in clear, distinct handwriting, easy to read, expressed in simple, direct, definite language, with sentences properly punctuated, paragraphs correctly arranged, is sure to be an acceptable communication. A note written in a slovenly, unformed, uneducated handwriting produces an impression upon the reader that those qualities are indicative of the writer's character. Confused sentences, words crowded together, mistakes in spelling and in grammar are serious defects in correspondence.

Everyone has experienced, at some time, the pleasure of receiving a gracious note, charmingly expressed, showing the kindliness, courtesy and consideration of the writer. In fact a note tells far more than the mere matter it contains. It reveals the characteristics of the writer, whose qualities of mind and heart are set forth quite unconsciously, yet are not hidden from one who knows how to read between the lines.

Facility of expression may not come readily to everyone, but, at least, the mere technique of note-writing may be mastered, and with time, patience and practice the finer art of expression may be learned. But it must be remembered that there should be nothing forced, stiff, affected or stilted in a note. The three qualities it should possess are spontaneity, sincerity and simplicity.

The haste and restlessness of present-day life, the inventions for saving time and trouble are largely responsible for the neglect of the art of note-writing. There are many circumstances where it is absolutely inexcusable to make use of a telephone instead of sending a note. Haste, in itself, is a mark of discourtesy.

The evidence of being sparing of time and trouble toward a friend is selfish. Courtesy is a fine flower and does not flourish in haste. It is not polite to scribble off a note and apologize for errors of haste. The time spent in excuses might have been used to write the note legibly and to express it pleasantly.

A fashion which does not change, and is always in good taste, is to use good, plain, white, rather thick note paper, folded once and placed in an envelope to fit. Black ink is used invariably. A typewritten note is strictly for business.

The usual form when writing a business letter to a stranger is to begin, "Mrs. James White, Dear Madame." In social correspondence the formula is "My dear Mrs. White," or "Dear Mrs. White."

Terminations are of various sorts. In business notes the form may be, "Your truly," or "Your very truly." Between friends, acquaintances or comparative strangers the form "Yours sincerely" is used. "Yours faithfully" is used from a man to a man or to a woman.

Signatures are in full and never with a prefix.

In-Shoots

It is possible for one to be nervous during a thunder-storm and not be such an awful sinner.

When it comes to the ills of mankind, imagination will supply almost everything save a broken leg.

When remembering what an easy mark Adam was we should not be too severe upon fellows who cannot resist the lures of this age.

When a man continually tells you that he is being worked to death it is good evidence that you will not need to purchase funeral flowers just yet.

People who fight for a principle sometimes display poor judgment in selecting the principle.

The devil's bargain counter often shows that some supposedly good men have been sold for a song.

A PRAYER

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

MASTER of sweet and loving lore,
Give us the open mind,
To know religion means no more,
No less, than being kind.

Give us the comprehensive sight
That sees another's need,
And let our aim to set things right
Prove God inspired our creed.

Give us the soul to know our kin
That dwell in flock and herd,
The voice to fight man's shameful sin
Against the beast and bird.

Give us a heart with love so fraught
For all created things,
That even our unspoken thought
Bears healing on its wings.

Give us religion that will cope
With life's colossal woes,
And turn a radiant face of hope
On troops of pigmy foes.

Give us the mastery of our fate
In thoughts so warm and white,
They stamp upon the brows of hate
Love's glorious seal of light.

Give us the strong, courageous faith
That makes of pain a friend,
And calls the secret word of death
"Beginning," and not "end."
